K Seeking Support to Beat Thant Three-Man Board Is Aim of Soviet

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was reported seeking support today for a three-man board to supplant the General Assembly acting Secretary-General U. Thant.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk met briefly Sunday with Thant, strongly backed by the United States for re-election as the sole executive of the United Nations. Rusk will talk with Gromyko Tuesday.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev first told the General Assembly in 1960 that the U.N. executive should consist of three men, each with a veto, representing Western, Communist and neutralist countries.

The Russians shelled that so-called troika plan to permit Thant's election last Nov. 3 to the remainder of the five-year term of the late Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld expiring next April 10.

Over the weekend, an informed diplomatic source said, Gromyko told another assembly delegate the Russians still want the troika, and the principle should be applied from top to bottom of the U.N. structure.

If Thant is to continue in office, he must be re-elected by the assembly after first being recommended by the Security Council, where the Soviet Union could veto him.

African, Asian and American sources have said that no matter how hard the Russians push the troika idea they can never get majority support for it.

Some have remarked that the Soviet Union is bound to agree to Thant's re-election because he has strong support in the Asian and African group, which comprises 53 of the 108 U.N. members.

Dairy Spokesman Scores Federal Drought Measures

Daniel J. Carey, manager of the Mutual Federation of Independent Cooperatives, in an address in Syracuse Sunday criticized severely the U. S. Department of Agriculture's drought assistance measures for dairymen in the New York-New Jersey milkshed.

Describing the summer drought as one of the worst in history, Carey said that present disaster assistance programs are inadequate to meet the needs of dairymen in the present situation. He pointed out that hay yields have been reduced by 50 to 75 per cent of normal, and that corn and oat crops will show a reduction of 25 to 50 per cent. Furthermore, lack of sufficient rainfall to sustain normal pasture growth has forced dairymen to feed winter rations to milk producing herds during much of the time when cows would normally get the bulk of their feed from pasture. This has reduced farm stored feed supplies for the coming winter and has measurably increased the cost of milk production during July, August, and September.

Ellenville Vols Battle Stubborn Fire on Sunday

Ellenville firemen battled a smoky blaze about 11:55 Sunday night at the corner of Canal and Market streets which kept them on the job until 2:20 a. m. today. While damage from fire was held to a minimum the firemen had difficulty in getting at the blaze because of the heavy smoke.

U. S. Education Office Impedes Freedom: Allen

KIAMESHA LAKE, N. Y. (AP)—State Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr., has called for an improved U. S. Office of Education. He says the present setup "invited political nomination, impedes freedom and makes it impossible" for the agency to give the kind of guidance that is needed.

"It is difficult to believe that so important a need could be allowed to receive the shilly-shallying, lagging, do-it-next-year kind of treatment that it does," he told the New York State Council of Superintendents at the group's annual meeting Sunday.

"Strength at the federal level is necessary to aid and invigorate, to bolster and support the efforts of the state and local officials directly responsible for education," Allen said.

To Finish Bridge Soon, City Asks About Traffic

Work began this morning on construction of the bailey bridge to replace the steel Esopus Creek span which collapsed Aug. 28, and Mayor John J. Schwenk, as announced at a Friday meeting, today forwarded by letter to a state engineer, questions to be answered to the satisfaction of the city in conjunction with use of the temporary span.

Parts of the bailey span which had been trucked in from Prattville and stacked a few hundred feet west of the bridge site, were moved to an area near the creek for start of construction. Work could be completed in about a week, if conditions are favorable, an engineer said.

Mayor Schwenk, in his letter to Robert W. Sweet, chief engineer, State Department of Public Works, said that he and the Common Council's special bridge committee, felt "that certain matters still remain to be solved before vehicular traffic may use the bailey bridge," and they hoped that they could be "settled within the next few days."

The letter asked its erection start immediately "for pedestrian use as per your department's original agreement with the city." "Basically," he wrote, "this is the position of the City of Kingston, as determined by its elected officials of the Common Council committee and myself."

The city is willing to assume its fair share of responsibility for maintenance, policing, and insurance of the bailey bridge along with the Town of Ulster, County of Ulster and the State of New York.

2. This responsibility should terminate at such time as the state selects a contractor for completion of the Washington Avenue Arterial, and elimination of the old Washington Avenue viaduct.

It is the city's understanding from discussions with state men "in connection with approval of arterial plans, that the contractor would become responsible for maintaining all existing traffic when the contract is awarded. We cannot see any justification for the city to bear this burden for the approximately 18 months period that work is going on, nor do we see the possibility for any workable traffic control when the contractor assumes responsibility for traffic in the Town of Ulster and City of Kingston portion, but leaves the bridge under separate control.

Points Not Clear
The mayor listed the following points, which he said are not clear:

1. What are your specific suggestions for policing of the bridge?
2. May the traffic flow be determined by the several local government bodies?
3. Who would be legally responsible for the bridge?
4. Would the State DPW provide a pedestrian walk if the bridge is used for vehicular traffic?
5. Would it be possible to provide for alternate traffic flow through the use of traffic lights?

These are the basic questions for which we must have answers (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Estes Trial Slated To Start Today In Swindle Case

TYLER, Tex. (AP)—Billie Sol Estes, whose multimillion-dollar empire of fertilizer tanks, grain elevators and cotton allotments has been sold in bankruptcy, faces trial today on charges of theft, swindling and embezzlement.

The trial of the 37-year-old financier was moved to this East Texas city—500 miles from Pecos where he directed his far-flung agricultural operations after his lawyers contended he could not get a fair hearing in his hometown.

Bankruptcy Sale
His appearance in District Court here comes only two days after the remains of his empire were sold in Bankruptcy Court at El Paso for $3.8 million plus $1.2 in interest to Morris D. Jaffee, San Antonio financier.

At one time friends estimated Estes was worth $150 million and he testified his operations were worth $40 million "as a going business."

The 101 witnesses summoned for the trial include three of Estes' former business associates, Coleman D. McSpadden of Lubbock and Harold E. Orr and Ruel W. Alexander of Amarillo. All three pleaded guilty last week in U.S. District Court to five of 29 (Continued on Page 6, Col. 2)

Guido Promises Free Elections, Amnesty Hinted

BUENOS AIRES AP—Backed by triumphant army rebels, President Jose Maria Guido set out today to bind the nation's wounds with a hint of amnesty for all and a promise of free elections.

Guido went on the radio Sunday night hours after the last resistance crumbled in north Argentina, ending five days of armed forces conflict that shook the country.

Guido himself was thrust into the presidency last March by the military high command that took a beating from rebel forces led by Brig. Gen. Juan Carlos Onganía.

Switched to Rebel Side
Onganía accused the high command of making Guido a virtual prisoner with the aim of leading Argentina into military dictatorship. He and his backers said they wanted to free Guido from military dictate and restore democratic institutions.

Guido switched to the rebel side in the midst of the conflict. While he told the nation he alone would exercise the powers of chief executive, he laid down a policy advocated by the rebels.

"There will be elections of new authorities within the briefest possible time in free polls," Guido declared. "This is the firm purpose of the government."

This echoed a statement by Onganía's forces at Campo de Mayo, the nation's largest garrison (Continued on Page 6, Col. 5)

Doors Shut As Caution On Bombs Police Experts Are After Vatican Clue

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Worried Vatican authorities closed the great central doors of St. Peter's today to shield the mother church of Roman Catholicism against an unknown bomber.

Vatican Gendarmes stood reinforced guard as Italian police and explosive experts sought clues to the origin of two incendiary bombs found in the church Saturday night. Had they exploded, the devices could have ruined the church and destroyed its art treasures.

Use Smaller Door

A high Vatican source said there was little doubt the intended bombing was directed against the Ecumenical, or World-wide Council opening in the basilica Oct. 11.

The usual throngs of visitors were admitted today through a smaller door, under close scrutiny of Italian plainclothes police.

The security moves were described as the tightest in Vatican history.

The time bombs were found at the base of the tiers of upholstered wooden seats installed for the 3,000 prelates who will attend the council.

Eight workmen who had been engaged last Saturday in the area where the explosives were found were under intense questioning.

Investigators sought to establish whether the two bombs were placed by the same person who set off an explosive in St. Peter's July 14 that chipped a marble statue. They also examined the timing mechanism attached to one of the bombs to learn when it was set to go off.

A workman found one of the bombs just after the church closed Saturday night.

Bids Called Today On City Insurance For October 5th

Mayor John J. Schwenk today reported a call for bids on city insurance to be opened in his office Oct. 5 at 2 p. m.

The bids are to be on fire and extended coverage, $50 deductible, including vandalism and malicious mischief, covering all buildings owned by the city. Proposals submitted should cover blanket at 90 per cent insurance.

Bids are asked for also on boiler and machinery insurance for vessels used in the recreation department. The latter insurance is also to cover the sewage disposal plant and central heating system.

The limit per accident on the latter insurance was listed at $100,000.

Notice on the call for bids said three or five-year plans will be considered and companies submitting must be licensed in the state.

Existing policies may be seen at the city clerk's office, city hall.

Schirra Will Study Future Flight Items

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Spacecraft fuel and water consumption will be major items under study when astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., makes his intended six-orbit flight around the world, now set for Oct. 3.

Proper supplies of fuel to control the spacecraft's attitude and water to maintain comfortable cabin and suit temperature are necessary if the next goal in Project Mercury—an 18-orbit, one-day flight—is to be met while using essentially the same spacecraft.

Causes 5-Day Delay
Project officials made several disclosures about the flight today as engineers worked to correct a valve problem which cropped up in the capsule last Friday. The trouble necessitated removal of the 4,200-pound craft from atop its Atlas booster rocket and caused a five-day delay in the planned Sept. 28 launch date.

A leak was detected in the valve and subsequent investigation revealed it was sticking. The valve is to be replaced and the present timetable calls for the spacecraft to be reloaded with the Atlas on Wednesday. Six to eight days of checkout then are required before firing.

John F. Yardley, Cape Canaveral base manager for McDonnell Aircraft Corp., which makes the capsule, said the most important thing he'll be looking for on Schirra's flight will be water consumption.

Ran Dangerously Low
"There is ample water aboard for a six-orbit mission," Yardley reported. "We're redesigning the capsule for an 18-orbit flight but we don't know how much water we'll need."

Yardley, who was responsible for preliminary design of the Mercury capsule, said the three-orbit journey of astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. and Malcolm Scott Carpenter gave engineers no indication of the amount of water needed for one-day missions.

Glenn and Carpenter ran dangerously low on hydrogen peroxide fuel and both had empty tanks when they landed. This was caused primarily by the astronauts' mismanagement of their fuel supply. Carpenter at one point inadvertently had two fuel-consuming control systems operating simultaneously.

Control System Modified
Robert L. Foster, McDonnell's engineering systems manager, reported the spacecraft carries 55 to 57 pounds of hydrogen peroxide—which is used to fire attitude-controlling jets spooling about the capsule surface. He said eight (Continued on Page 6, Col. 8)

Philharmonic Has Impressive Opening Sunday

NEW YORK (AP)—At approximately 9:01 1/2 p. m. Jacqueline Kennedy walked into the box and bowed slightly.

At approximately 9:02 p. m. Leonard Bernstein wormed his way through the gentlemen of the Philharmonic Orchestra and poised his baton.

At approximately 9:02 1/2 — one and a half minutes behind schedule—the orchestra played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and a brave but unfinished new world of culture was launched.

Beautiful Temple
The new Philharmonic Hall—perhaps the most impressive marble temple of our generation—was beautiful. Beside it—concealed from the richly garbed crowd in the lobby by a hastily constructed plywood fence—were the rubble and construction tools of what will someday be the complex of buildings to be known as the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Philharmonic Hall—except for the marble pillars—is almost all (Continued on Page 6, Col. 8)

76 Aboard Plane as It Ditches

500-Mile Search West of Ireland

LONDON (AP)—An international rescue fleet hauled at least 48 plane crash victims from the gale-whipped Atlantic today and then sighted still more terrified survivors clinging to a raft.

Planes and ships scoured the disaster area 500 miles west of Ireland where a chartered Super-Constellation carrying American servicemen and their families ditched in darkness Sunday night after three of its engines failed—one by one.

There were at least 76 persons, 68 servicemen and their families and crew of 8, aboard the stricken Flying Tiger airliner.

Two bodies were recovered in addition to people saved. One account put the number rescued at 50.

Two dramatic races were in progress. In one the rescue ships and planes were desperately trying to locate the missing survivors before 10-foot waves, cold and the darkness of another night could snuff out their lives.

Raft Sighted
In the other efforts were being pushed to get medical attention to those already picked up, many of whom were injured and suffering from shock and exposure.

The 7,000-ton Cunard freighter Andania radioed that she had sighted a raft from the ditched airliner with people aboard.

The terse message from the Andania did not say how many people were aboard the raft or whether the Andania had succeeded yet in snatching them from the sea.

But the freighter's message spurred on the many other ships and planes in the area.

The 9,041-ton Swiss ship Celerina took 48 survivors aboard after being directed to the scene by Lt. Joseph K. Lewis, 25, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., the pilot of a U.S. Air Force C-119.

Lewis arrived at the scene just as the Super Constellation was ditching. He made an accurate fix and circled the area—serving as a beacon for the planes and ships rushing to help.

Three Engines Stopped
Bound for Germany, the Super Constellation went down after three of the big plane's four engines conked out.

Officials said rain swept the area as two rescue ships howl and began an almost incredible rescue operation in the darkness and tossing seas. Lights from the plane's life rafts guided them to the scene.

The British Admiralty said many of the survivors were injured and neither of the first two ships to reach the scene had a doctor aboard.

A U.S. Air Force spokesman said a report from the freighter Celerina at the scene indicated that the pilot of the ditched plane, (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Strangler of Women Shot To Death in Police Trap

NEW YORK (AP)—A detective hidden in a closet and a decoy policewoman feigning sleep in a blue satin nightgown set the stage for a flawlessly executed police trap that proved fatal for a rapist and strangler of two women.

The detective popped out of the closet when the killer returned early Sunday to the scene of his latest rape-attempt. Two other detectives came on the run from an adjoining room, and the three officers pumped a dozen bullets through the locked door of a bathroom where the killer had taken refuge.

When they broke open the door, they found that five bullets had found their mark. Charles Gumbly, 37, a Negro lay dead on the floor.

While police here announced that Gumbly's fingerprints tallied with those found in the apartments where two Brooklyn women were raped and choked to death two years ago, the Boston police homicide squad began an investigation of its own. They sought to determine if Gumbly was the strangler of six greater Boston women this summer.

Investigators suspect that the Boston stranglings—occurring between June 14 and Aug. 20—all were committed by the same person. The victims were women in later years of life, living alone, and several had been criminally assaulted.

That pattern also was drawn in the stranglings here to which Gumbly was connected—that of Mrs. Lea Auster, 57, in July 1960, and Mrs. Wilhelmina Tinsdale, 60, in Sept. 1960. Both white women were raped and slain in their Brooklyn apartments.

The rape of Miss Chisholm, a week ago Sunday, put Detectives on Gumbly's trail.

A police crime laboratory detective, Patrick Fusci, discovered that fingerprints found in Miss Chisholm's Brooklyn apartment, matched prints found at the Tinsdale and Auster murder scenes.

Blast Damages Equipment and Building Sunday

An explosion in the building which houses an emergency generator used for auxiliary power for the Ulster County radio service damaged the building and equipment at 3:37 p. m. Sunday. The concrete structure is located on the Lake Minnewaska grounds.

A call was received at the sheriff's office from Kenneth Phillips at Lake Minnewaska asking that Mutual Aid Fire Dispatcher Harvey Mertine be notified.

Phillips reported that after a power failure the equipment had been functioning and when the main power returned there was an explosion which blew out the end of the cement block building. Ulster County Investigator Arthur H. Brown and Deputy Sheriffs Ernest B. Alhberg and Robert Doran conducted an investigation.

The building which houses the auxiliary equipment was reported to be a "total loss" with some equipment damaged. The emergency generator was also damaged as was a car owned by Alton Dingy, Accord, an employee at Lake Minnewaska. His car had been parked at the building. Glass and cement blocks were blown over a considerable area. There was no interruption in radio service. Supervisor Charles Relyea, chairman of the two-way radio committee and Jesse McHugh, chairman of the board of supervisors, were notified.

Postpones Creation Of Public Defender

Proposed creation of a public defender for Dutchess County will not be acted upon until 1963, according to Supervisor Harold L. Kulp (R-Town of Clinton), chairman of the county officers and compensation committee.

Dutchess County Bar Association officers had favored the creation of the office of public defender this year so funds could be included in the 1963 budget estimates.

101 Pay Hikes Recommended in Dutchess County

Salary increases for 101 county employees will be recommended by Dutchess County Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan and County Clerk Frederic A. Smith in their 1963 budget requests. Both officials called county employees underpaid.

Smith said he would ask for two increment raises for his 26 employees, and Quinlan will seek increases for his 75 employees in addition to seeking five additional guards to man the new jail wing now under construction. Smith contended the county salary situation is "desperate." He said there has been a turnover of seven of his 26 employees since February. He said a comparison of salaries paid to federal and state employees in Poughkeepsie "makes county salaries look sick."

Sheriff Quinlan said he has had difficulty keeping help because of low salaries, and contended the county pay doesn't give a family man a living wage.

Tax Exemptions To Railroads to Be Dutchess Loss

Dutchess County's two cities and 12 of the 20 towns will lose a total of $2,305,469 in real property assessments for 1963 tax purposes as a result of new state-mandated exemptions to the New York, New Haven and Hartford and New York Central railroads. Poughkeepsie city received a cut of $520,275 in assessments on the two railroads. Building Inspector-Assessor John VanRouen-dael's equalized assessments show the reduction virtually wiped out increases to the city's assessment roll this year.

Beacon city received the second largest reduction of assessments from the state ordered exemptions with a cut of $387,308. Reductions to other assessment rolls resulting from the exemptions are: Fishkill-$335,684; Town of Poughkeepsie-$255,271; Hyde Park-$206,445; Pawling-$174,678; Wappinger-$131,562; North East-$11,253; Red Hook-$63,382; Beekman-$36,904; Amenia-$36,635; LaGrange-$39,902; Dover-$34,141.

Because of the reappraisal of property in the Town of Rhinebeck, the New York Central assessment was increased $1,266,915.

Rescue Fleet

Capt. John D. Murray, 44, of Oyster Bay, N. Y., had been picked up alive.

The plane en route from McGuire Air Force Base near Trenton, N.J., to Frankfurt, Germany, carried two children seven women and 59 Army personnel, officials said.

Carried Life Rafts

A Flying Tiger spokesman at Shannon Airport in southwest Ireland said the 9,041-ton Swiss freighter Celerina had picked up 42 survivors and one body near where the big plane went down in heavy seas lashed by 40-knot winds. The Celerina was about 40 miles away when the plane went down.

A U.S. Air Force spokesman at Prestwick, Scotland, center of the air rescue operation, said a second vessel, believed to be a Cunard liner was also picking up survivors. Earlier reports had said the 5,236-ton Turkish ship Adana had picked up 7 women and 2 children.

The ditched plane carried five life rafts, each capable of keeping 25 people afloat. First to spot life rafts bobbing in the water was a C118, which was also on a troop ferrying mission. Answering an alert, the C118 sighted the airliner just before it ditched and began circling over the area.

From many directions, ships turned course and headed full speed for the ditching area as soon as word flashed over the air.

Besides the two ships that picked up the first survivors they included the ocean liner Mauretania, the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure, several freighters, five destroyers, a Coast Guard cutter, two iron ore carriers and an American ocean station rescue ship.

Pilot From Oyster Bay

A full alert was sounded at U.S. and British air force bases in England and Scotland after the pilot of the Flying Tiger radioed he could not keep the big plane aloft and was ditching.

Earlier the pilot, Capt. John D. Murray, 44, of Oyster Bay, N. Y., reported two of his engines had cut out and he was going to try to reach Shannon. The plane was then about 700 miles from Ireland. The airliner dropped from 18,000 feet to 5,000. Its speed slipped back from over 300 mph to 190 mph.

Then a third engine cut, and Murray radioed he was ditching. Lt. Joseph K. Lewis, 25, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., was the pilot of the C118 that first reported the crash.

"We were on our way over the Atlantic after having refueled at Prestwick when we heard the first radio message that the plane was in trouble," Lewis said.

Kept Radio Contact

"We made for her position when she lost height, but kept in constant radio contact."

"We saw her disappear below the clouds a minute before she ditched."

"She gave us a last report. We circled round and round in orbit for five hours."

"It was too dark and we did not see the wreckage, but we saw either two or three rafts. One of the rafts had lights on it and it seemed obvious that there were people on that one, at least."

"We kept circling round at a height of 1,300 feet and before we left we saw a surface vessel making for the aircraft."

Portion of Thumb Sewn Back After Powersaw Mishap

A former left-handed pitcher with the Kingston Braves accidentally cut off a portion of his right thumb Saturday afternoon while operating an electric power saw at DeWitt Mills Road, Town of Rosendale, and he was rushed to Benedictine Hospital where the severed part was grafted to the finger.

Dr. Emil S. Goodyear, who performed the operation on Robert H. Maines, 23, of Whiteport, said it was not unusual to graft portions after they had been severed. He said Maines was out of the hospital and back to work today.

Maines, who pitched for the Braves in 1961, was rushed to the hospital about 12:45 p. m. with a police escort along Lucas Avenue. Some relatives of Maines rushed back to the scene of the mishap to bring back the severed portion for grafting. Maines resides at Whiteport with his wife, Carol and a son, Jeffrey, three months.

Education Group Wants $500 Limit Change on Pupils

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The New York State Educational Conference Board wants the legislature to eliminate the $500-per-pupil ceiling on which state aid to public schools is computed.

The board, which represents nine major public-school organizations, said Sunday the $500 limit was unrealistic. The state should not expect all types of school districts to operate "within the average expenditure per pupil," the board's statement said.

The board offered no substitute ceiling but suggested that state aid per pupil be based on local school-tax rates.

The amount of state aid per pupil given to each district now ranges up to 90 per cent of the $500 limit and depends on each district's need, as measured by the value of its real property subject to taxation.

Elimination of the ceiling was one of several contained in the board's 1963 legislative program. In others, the board:

1. Renewed its support for the recommendation last winter by the Diefendorf committee that school districts be authorized to join on a county-wide basis to levy a one per cent sales tax to help cover costs of education.

2. Recommended that approval of only 60 per cent of the voters balloting at a school meeting be required for passage of a bond issue, instead of the present two-thirds majority.

3. Urged fiscal independence for the "Big Six" school districts, which are now part of the municipal governments of New York City, Yonkers, Buffalo, Syracuse, Rochester and Albany.

The board said its proposals would enable all types of school districts in the state "to meet their essential school needs and gradually to improve educational quality."

Albany Firemen Get Airlines Calls On Alarm Phone

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A volunteer fire department in an Albany suburb gropes with a problem that's a bell-ringer — and the jangling is jangling the firemen's nerves.

In recent weeks, the Shaker Road - Loudonville Fire Department has received on its emergency telephone an average of 10 calls a day at all hours from persons seeking information about reservations on American Airlines.

The number for the department's "hot phone," used to report fires, differs by only one digit from that of the airline. Where the fire company has a 6, the airline has a zero.

But someone who tries to call the airline and, by mistake, dials a letter instead of a zero gets the fire department's emergency phone, since the letter 7 and the 6 occupy the same spot on the dial.

The firemen don't want to change their emergency number because for 10 years they have been educating residents in their area to use it when necessary.

The airline, which has had its number since June, is willing to change, but it needs 10 consecutive circuits.

Both the firemen and the airline are hoping the New York Telephone Co. will telephone with a solution to the problem.

Eisenhower Will Talk for Rocky in Syracuse Oct. 29

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) —

Former President Eisenhower will deliver a major campaign address in behalf of Gov. Rockefeller and his running mates in the state election at a Republican dinner here Oct. 29, the Onondaga County chairman reports.

State Sen. John H. Hughes said Saturday night that Eisenhower had accepted an invitation from Rockefeller to speak at the $100-a-plate dinner at the War Memorial Auditorium. The governor and others on the GOP ticket will attend, Hughes said.

Rockefeller, nominated last week to run for another term, has called for a "smashing victory" in the November election. An overwhelming win at the polls would add to his national luster as a vote-getter and boost his chances for the Republican presidential nomination in 1964.

George H. Van Lengen, the Democratic County chairman here, said Thursday that President Kennedy would speak in Syracuse in behalf of Robert M. Morgenthau, Rockefeller's opponent and a Kennedy friend from boyhood days on Cape Cod.

No date for the Kennedy visit has been announced.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 24, 1962

KENNEDY-LODGE RIVALRY

In the next six weeks, considerable national interest will focus on Massachusetts' newest replay of the long standing Kennedy-Lodge rivalry.

Never before has this rivalry been advanced on both sides by men at once so youthful and so green politically.

The President's brother, Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, who swept to a 2-1 triumph for the Democratic nomination for United States Senate over State Attorney General Edward J. McCormack, is just 30 and has never held political office.

Kennedy's opponent is George Cabot Lodge, 35, who also has never held an elective office, although he served as an assistant secretary of labor through part of the Eisenhower administration.

Obviously, the "age and experience" issue which McCormack raised against Ted Kennedy in the Democratic primary will largely wash out in the election campaign already under way.

Yet, green as these two young adversaries are, it must be said that both were tempered by the fires of heavy battle in the primaries they survived.

George Lodge, it turns out, had a closer race all the way against 69-year-old Rep. Laurence Curtis. Observers argue that the effort made him, inevitably, a formidable campaigner.

Ted Kennedy surprised most people by the breadth of his sweep. McCormack, a seasoned professional with a large political following in Massachusetts, was expected to do extremely well in Boston, which accounts for nearly a third of the state's vote. But Kennedy took Boston by virtually same margin he gained elsewhere.

The young man's victory is bound to be as controversial as the fact that he ran at all. Many people wholly outside the campaign have criticized him for "starting at the top" in a bid for the Senate.

In Massachusetts, some of this opposition may now center with great vigor on the candidacy of an independent, H. Stuart Hughes, grandson of the late, great Charles Evans Hughes, once Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

But while Ted Kennedy has a host of critics, and while his success to this point may be something of an issue in campaigns in other states, it is also plain that in Massachusetts he has many supporters.

It is common to say that voting in primaries is more or less organization-controlled. In this instance this notion has to be sharply qualified.

To begin with, this was a record primary turnout, and when the numbers are big the "control" tends to be weak. Furthermore, much of the regular Democratic organization was said to be laboring for McCormack. There is no question, of course, that Ted Kennedy had supreme advantages—the prestige of his family's name, the undoubtedly substantial White House pressures on state politicians, many of whom felt they were caught between two fires.

Yet it is clear that ordinary Massachusetts voters, who cannot really be pressured when they enter the privacy of the voting booth, were strong for Teddy.

The country will now watch keenly the newest chapter in his family's rivalry with the venerable Lodge clan. Along the way, we shall learn, from talk in other states, how much substance there is to Republican argument that people fear a "Kennedy dynasty."

CURLING

Come, come now, Science.
Aren't you going a little too far when you stir together a mixed batch of vegetables with some tepid water to make artificial "milk"?

Even the lab boys admit you have to put to put in vitamins and it comes out a sickly green color.

Why not leave this job to Bossy, who has been turning out a nice white or creamy colored beverage for years, packed with calcium and other body needs?

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY
THE SPIRIT OF YOUTH

It is often asked why the Kennedy Administration uses so many young and untried men in critical positions. It could be assumed that the President being in his young 40s is not comfortable with oldsters, say, like Bernard Baruch at 92 of James A. Farley at 74.

Robert Kennedy, in his new book, "Just Friends and Brave Enemies," discloses the philosophy of youth. He writes:

"I remember that Ambassador Reischauer, when he encouraged me to make this trip, said the great problem we face in Japan is the growing feeling that the United States is a tired old country and that Communism and the Communists are developing young leaders for the future."

"As the President pointed out, a new generation now carries the torch in the United States. 'We must,' as Ambassador Reischauer said, 'try and project our true image around the world.' 'Come to Japan,' he told me. 'You are young. You look rested. Come and offset this false feeling.'"

"And so we went; we listened; we learned; we told people about the United States and about the American people. We left the United States, as Ambassador Reischauer said, young and rested."

Ardent, inquisitive youth is often, like Marco Polo, always discovering something new and unknown which was always there. Bob Kennedy visited Japan more than 40 years after I first saw that country and I always came away from Japan, young and rested. For since 1858, when the Meiji Revolution occurred, Japan has been young and virile and not tired. In a word, an older man can know what a younger man newly discovers.

My own experience has been that age is difficult to determine. For instance, Herbert Hoover at 88 went through a cancer operation and, except for a day or two, worked all the time. He is back to turning out three books this year. Bernard Baruch at 92 is mentally more vigorous than most men in their 40s. His store of knowledge, his vast experience, his record of trial and error, is advantageous to anyone who has access to him.

There are young men who are intellectually superior to the young. They may wear Phi Beta Kappa keys, but their mental processes are inflexible and they seem unable to learn from history or experience. They move like a horse with blinders.

Age is a matter of glands, arteries and the concepts which can be as rigid at 18 as at 80. Mozart was intellectually mature in his teens; Talleyrand, Bismarck, Baruch, Hoover and so many others have been able to remain young in mind and progressive in spirit far into a ripe, old age.

The United States obviously is a tired nation; yet, in the arts the United States is expressing a vibrant virility, a young and driving imagination which proves that the fatigue is being shaken off. This is particularly true in music.

Our political responses, however, are not inspiring. It is many years since this country has produced a political mind such as Elihu Root possessed. In this generation, we have no Henry Clay or Daniel Webster. Our political fatigue is the result of our electoral system. It is too costly to be elected and too tiresome. It costs too much to be an independent person. Such a figure as Abraham Lincoln or Robert La Follette the elder would have a difficult time finding a role in American politics.

This is a more important factor in our fatigue than age. It means that valuable talent is wasted because we have made the cost of service to the nation too extravagant and excessive.

But there are many other factors in our general tiredness. The public obsession with sex and gossip and so-called celebrities diverts from a consideration nationally of the virtues of a great personality. The Democrats in New York nominated an unknown and inexperienced candidate for Governor, a person so raw that his name does not appear in "Who's Who in America," only because senior members of his family were once important personalities.

One needs to think of the waste of time and thought on minor matters of almost neurotic selfishness and narcissistic obsession with oneself and one's figure and hair color and ailments. No wonder the President conducts a campaign for physical fitness. We need perhaps to battle most against self-pity which is a disease of youth. (Copyright, 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Prompt Care Is Indicated

For Child With Gallstones

By HAROLD T. HYMAN, M.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Our 10-year-old daughter has been found to have gallstones, and an operation has been recommended to relieve her indigestion and attacks of quite severe abdominal pain. Do gallstones form so early in life? Is an operation advisable in a child so young?

A—Gallstones in children are not as uncommon as many would believe. A report of 60 such instances in Swedish children between the ages of 6 and 15 years of age points up this fact. In these instances, as in the case of your child, the operation is not only advisable, it is imperative. Delay can only add to the difficulties and increase operative risks and complications.

Q—For many years, our young daughter has been in the habit of stealing little, unimportant things in our home—candy or costume jewelry or small coins. Since my husband and I remember going through a phase of filching when we were her age we've scolded her very gently and tried to explain the need for respecting the property of others.

Last week, however, the problem became more acute when she was sent home from school for stealing a classmate's purse that contained only a few pennies and a clasp that is not as nice as the one she owns herself. How do you think we should deal with this situation?

A—As you remark, it takes a time for children to recognize the rights of private property. Each of us goes through a period of claiming or actually taking the property of another. Children do it with the toys of others. In my opinion, this is not actually kleptomania. I suppose it can lead to kleptomania, and, as such, may require action on the part of a teacher.

If the stolen objects appear to be of no actual use to your daughter, it may be that she craves attention, or more affection than she is receiving. If that is so, punishment may make matters worse. Why don't you and your husband do a bit of soul-searching before you deal with the child.

Q—We have twins who were prematurely born. Their teeth are coming in and they are a dirty yellow color. What can cause this? What can we do about it?

A—It is quite possible that this is an unavoidable drug effect. Prematures usually require protection from infection with an antibiotic product. It has recently been observed that those who received one of the most useful of the "miracle drugs" (tetracycline) showed later evidences of tooth discoloration such as you have observed.

Although it is too early to state with complete assurance, it is unlikely that the permanent teeth will be similarly discolored. For these "baby teeth" there is nothing you can do or need do.

Communist authorities in Czechoslovakia are worried about a drop in the birth rate. They don't worry about the drop in human dignity under communism.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

The President's "non-political" space agency visit to Houston revived an untold story about presidential candidate Kennedy's trip to the Texas metropolis two years ago when he submitted to heavy questioning at a mass meeting of ministers.

Putting on a dark suit before the meeting, Kennedy was chastised to find he had no black shoes to wear. He grumbled at his aides as he put on a brown pair and dashed for the hall.

Aides Kenneth O'Donnell and David Powers were baffled to figure out what had happened to the black shoes they had carefully nursed along through a hectic day of flying in the "Caroline" across Texas.

It turned out that Janet Derosiers, then secretary-stewardess on the "Caroline," had innocently switched Kennedy's shoes after he took a brief nap aboard the plane.

Powers, now well known as the President's lighthearted swimming companion, met the Houston shoe crisis in his own way. Coming up to Kennedy after he had successfully met the ministers' challenge, Dave boomed:

"Senator, tonight you sewed up the brown shoe vote!"

GAG kicking around Republican headquarters:
One bird said to the other "If I could vote I'd vote for Kennedy."

When the other bird asked why, the first bird replied, "Because he's for us."

THE PREFERENCE of gourmets for rare meat is not restricted to steak or beef. An Oriental cuisine enthusiast walked into a Washington Chinese restaurant the other night and told the waiter to bring him "octopus." When asked how he wanted it, the gourmet replied, "So rare you can't see the ink run."

STATE Attorney General Edward J. McCormack Jr. of Massachusetts was presented to a Washington news conference by National Press Club President George Cullen as "the other attorney general, the other half of a television team currently popular in Massachusetts—the Teddy and Eddie show—not to be confused with the Ev and Charlie show."

The references was to McCormack's television debates with Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, the President's brother, and McCormack's rival in the just completed Massachusetts campaign for Democratic nomination in the U. S. Senate race.

Cullen, taking note of the fact that Eddie McCormack sometimes is confused with his uncle, Speaker John W. McCormack, quoted an elderly Cape Cod lady who said:

"Things have come to a pretty pass when a nice young man like Ted Kennedy has to be opposed by a 70-year-old politician."

SEN. NORRIS Cotton, R-N.H., says "Death and taxes are both inevitable, but at least death doesn't become worse each time Congress meets."

DEFENSE DEPT. receives hundreds of letters a day asking for information. Many are from children. One post card, obviously signed by a small fry, came in with this simple message:

"Please send me some."

SEN. KENNETH Keating of New York is the victim in a strange case of mistaken identity. He got a note, addressed to "Kenneth Keating, Superintendent of Documents, care of the Government Printing Office"—reading "It has been many years since I lived in my old home town of Peoria, where I knew a chap with the same name as yours. Are you the man? Any way, send me Senate Document No. 81."

"This is a clear case of wrong time, wrong place and wrong man," says Keating, "although at times I have the feeling I am Superintendent of the Mails, as I watch the sacks come pouring into my office or when I hear Perry Como sing, 'We get letters.'"

AN UNOFFICIAL, do-it-yourself Department of Defense public relations service has been set up in the Pentagon press room.

It aims at giving more efficient service to newsmen wanting quick answers about what's happening on the Defense Department front.

On the press table is a large tin can labeled "Automatic Answering Device—Take One." Inside are about 20 folded slips of paper.

A reporter simply draws a slip and has his answer without bureaucratic delay. Sample answers:

"No comment." "Classified." "Cannot confirm or deny." "Refer to State Department." "Cannot identify." "No." "What?" "Are you kidding?"

Happy reporters say this service gives them the same answers they'd get anyway, only quicker.

VICE PRESIDENT Lyndon Johnson and House Speaker John McCormack are also top ranking members of another exclusive Capitol Hill club—Boy Scout Explorer Post 1200. Its active members are drawn from the 100 congressional page boys, two from each state, who run errands on the floor of the Senate and House.

Explorer Post 1200 came into being through the efforts of Louie Thornhill in the Capitol architect's office. He has been a scout since 1918, when he was 12. Thornhill found that many of the page boys, who attend their own high schools between congressional sessions, had few extracurricular activities to keep them from getting homesick.

Sponsors were needed in order to set up the scout post, so Louie went out rallying. Results was one of the most unusual sponsorship lists the Boy Scouts have ever had. Among the list of members are Senate President pro-tem Carl Hayden, Senate majority and minority leaders Mike Mansfield and Everett Dirksen, House minority leader Charles Halleck.

There was the sound of rubber spinning on gravel and a tin lizzie swung into the drive, around the curves, and braked to a dead stop. A young man, wild-eyed and disheveled, got out and ran around the car. When McCormack saw the tender manner with which he opened the door, he turned to Sister Pulcheria. "You win, sister," he said.

She didn't. The first official case was a delivery. Sister M. Pulcheria was in charge of the nursing staff in the delivery room. From that day on, she helped to bring new lives of all races, all creeds, into the world. She worked day and night and sometimes, when labor was protracted, it wasn't easy to get her off the floor or her dinner.

Many years later, my daughter Virginia Lee worked for Sister Pulcheria as a teen-age volunteer. Twice, when sister was off-duty, I saw her in the fathers' waiting room, walking the floor with them. The doctors knew that sister's special favorites were little girls. So, at the moment of birth, if the baby was female, the doctor almost always held it by the heels, slapped it, and handed it to Sister. "Throw it out the window," he'd say, "It's a girl."

"May God forgive you," sister always said. "Give her to me." For 3 years, day and night, Sister Pulcheria assisted in the delivery of more than 50,000 babies. Long before that time, she would be pressing a cool cloth on a warm forehead, and the woman would say: "You don't remember me, Sister, but you helped at my birth."

It was true and, over the pride, the sister felt the chill of time. She worked harder and harder.

In the front doorway stood Dr. Frank McCormack, the new superintendent. He was talking to a young interne. Sister Pulcheria came up behind them in silence. They were discussing the first case. "Well, young man," said Dr. McCormack, "what do you think it will be?" They stared out at the big trees on the deep lawn, the long curving driveway, and over the rim of the Palisades, the skyscrapers of New York.

"Nobody knows, of course," the young interne said. "It could be an accident case. Maybe a hot appendix." McCormack put his knuckles on his hips. "Or an embolism," he said, "or a myocardial infarction or . . ."

Sister Pulcheria coughed. "If it pleases God," she said, "I hope the first one will not be a life on the way out of the world. I'd like to see one coming in." McCormack turned and smiled. "Anyone can join the game, sister."

Today in World Affairs

On Soviet Grab in Cuba: Why Doesn't U.S. Speak Up?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Time was when a President of the United States didn't hesitate to speak forthrightly and to act in support of the principles of human freedom anywhere in the world. Two Presidents, both Democrats—Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt—led the American people as they made sacrifices for that basic principle in two world wars.

But today there is a strange silence—even a fear that it is "indiscreet" or that it's "loose talk" to urge that America speak and act in behalf of human beings in Cuba or against the cruelty of their oppressors or against the autocratic government in Moscow which is giving military assistance to a tyrannical dictatorship in Havana.

The latest excuse or alibi now given wide currency by advisers of President Kennedy—and fed out to the press here—is that the Monroe Doctrine has been repealed because America entered World War 1 and World War 2.

It is averred that the United States by militarily assisting certain governments in Europe and Asia during the "cold war," has forfeited her right to act in behalf of peoples in this hemisphere who have had their freedoms taken from them by Communist imperialism.

If this concept gains strength, it cannot but encourage the Soviets to penetrate with impunity North and South America as well as every other continent. For, in effect, the advocates of this philosophy are saying that this country has no right to interfere with Soviet conquest of Cuba because the United States now has, under the North Atlantic Treaty, military bases in various European countries. This can only mean, that America must, therefore, recognize the Soviet occupation not only of Cuba but of the Baltic states, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria. Can the Soviets point to a single example of the grant of American military aid that has resulted in any political control by the United States?

Retreat in Expediency
The whole thing is an illustration of how expediency leads to one retreat after another. For the United States has just announced, through White House and State Department pronouncements, that America's armed forces will be used only to repel military attacks on this country or its neighbors. This is a doctrine of isolation reminiscent of the days when prominent Republicans opposed American entry into either of the two world wars on the grounds that the interests of this country were not directly affected. It was of course, just a means of appealing to pacifistic sentiment.

Twice the dictatorship government in Berlin misconstrued this attitude as an unwillingness on the part of the United States to fight. In the end, the deliberate attack on American rights on the high seas forced this country into World War I in 1917. When it was Japan and not Germany that attacked Pearl Harbor in 1941, the United States accepted the challenge as a direct attack by the Nazi regime as well. Indeed, the United States made its main war effort on the continent of Europe and in North Africa.

Thus, the United States in two world wars has refused to narrow the concept of its participation in world affairs to either the Western or the Eastern Hemisphere. The Monroe Doctrine has not been narrowed. It has been broadened. From 1945 until a few weeks ago, American policy has been based on the principle that every people has a right to self-determination and that it is the duty of the United States to help rid the world of any sinister force that now may invade only smaller countries but in the end will invade the larger ones as well. Woodrow Wilson said to Congress in 1917 that "the world must be made safe for democracy." It isn't safe today for any free government.

Silence Misconstrued
The Soviets are talking loud because they think they can bluff America into inaction and silence. Foreign Minister Gromyko's brazen speech at the United Nations a few days ago, charging this country with aggression, is an example of how readily American silence can be misinterpreted. If the United States government continues to make excuses for abandoning the people in a little country 90 miles away, how can it ever be expected either to lift its voice or render any aid to the peoples of the captive countries in Europe and Asia? To draw back into "Fortress America" and contend that the United States has no obligation to speak out or act in behalf of the Cuban people because this might offend Soviet Russia means that a bigger test under even more dangerous circumstances may come later on at a time when it will be more difficult, more hazardous and more costly in human lives than this one is now.

Today the vocal chords or the United States government have been silenced by a strategy of fear, of hesitancy and of vacillation, which keeps on emphasizing the "totality" of the world situation—as if this means that the principles of democracy and the aspirations of peoples at present under the yoke of Communist imperialism have become secondary. Yet this nation could mobilize—by exhortation of foreign peoples—forces that would inevitably thwart the aims of the aggressors.

War or the threat of war isn't the most powerful weapon in the world today. Moral forces plus economic force are even more powerful. But if there is fear even to speak, then, in the end, war comes because the enemy misinterprets silence for timidity and inaction for weakness.

She isn't there. The infants are there. They weep or sleep behind glass, the tiny hands red and wrinkled and moving in slow-motion arcs. The bodies are warm in the womb of bassinets. They are on one end of the line. Sister M. Pulcheria is on the other.

She isn't at Holy Name Hospital anymore because she is too old for duty. She sits in a home for nuns at Hohokus, N. J. When she has a good day, she asks about the babies and her old friends—Canise, Evelyn, Athanasius—and many more who once worked with her. When the day is not good, Sister Pulcheria wanders a little; dates and places become confused with names long gone.

Time has not robbed her of the complete utter femininity, the dainty step with which she approached life. Nor the sweet solicitude with which she was born. She was born with a love for babies and, when she took her final vows in the order of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Newark, she knew that she would never be blessed with any of her own.

So, in a way, it became her life work to bring the babies of others into the world. She studied nursing, was registered, and wore a white habit. Back in the 1920's, when the Holy Name Hospital was completed in Teaneck, N. J., she walked the long gleaming corridors with a smug smile. This was the day. The first day.

In the front doorway stood Dr. Frank McCormack, the new superintendent. He was talking to a young interne. Sister Pulcheria came up behind them in silence. They were discussing the first case. "Well, young man," said Dr. McCormack, "what do you think it will be?" She had to learn new techniques; to Sister M. Bartholomew's library for all the new medical journals; learn, learn, learn.

Five years ago, the tick of time began to sound loud in her ears. She was old. It was time to quit, past time. She looked around her. Dr. McCormack was old. He was quitting. So many nuns who had worked with her through the years—where were they? When had they left?

The front door was the same. The gravel drive was the same. She could hear the spinning of wheels on stones. Sister Pulcheria was ordered to quit.

The infants are there. They weep or sleep behind glass, the tiny hands moving in slow-motion arcs. But she isn't there. And yet I think of her as the greatest mother of them all. . .

Rochester Town Board Concerned With Bridge Work

One of the matters brought before the September meeting of the town board of the Town of Rochester was the question, when is the county going to build the new Cherrytown bridge?

Supervisor A. Richard Terwilliger (R), read a copy of a letter he had written on April 6, to the County Highway Department offering to cooperate fully with them on an agreement made early in the year between County Superintendent of Highways Roland H. Green and Town Superintendent Richard Gray, that the town would take over the maintenance of four county bridges in the town in return for the county building the Cherrytown bridge. His letter contained a copy of the board's resolution and offers to help in any way that would expedite the construction of this important project.

Town Given Bridge
A recent communication from the county gave notice that a fifth bridge is being turned over to the town for maintenance, and a request was made for a copy of the April 6th letter, since it cannot be located in their files.

A general feeling was expressed by Supervisor Terwilliger and the board members that the original agreement was made, and before they can accept a change there should be some explanation. Superintendent Gray agreed to meet with the county superintendent after which a special meeting on this matter will be called.

A suggestion was made by Supervisor Terwilliger to Superintendent Gray that Erwin plan roads designated for resurfacing this year should be done so that the town can be reimbursed with state aid. One new Erwin project has been completed, and two others are on the way.

Superintendent Gray reported he had been asked to repair a road from the Wallace Lawrence place to Makowsky's and since it is a town road, and also designated on the Erwin plan road map, the board agreed the work should be done. At this point Superintendent Gray told the board more money will have to be allotted to the highway fund in the future if he is to be able to resurface as many roads as are now being requested. Unless additional funds are provided, some routes will have to go back to dirt roads.

Trucks Wearing Out
Gray also brought attention to the problems of town machinery that is wearing out. Two of the four Walters trucks, he reported in bad shape, and two town Chevrolet trucks have already needed framework repairs. The prospects of working efficiently through another winter are not too certain under these conditions, Gray said.

Supervisor Terwilliger suggested Gray bring in specifications on different makes of trucks and this matter will then be discussed.

Justice Abe D. Smith offered a resolution in regard to the house that is to be moved from the intersection on Lower Granite Road, suggesting that the town board, in connection with the reconstruction of the road, enter into an agreement with Jack Alpert to disassemble the garage which is attached to the premises, remove the lumber and material from the garage to a place in the vicinity to be designated by the board, and reassemble the garage with materials from the old garage and supply necessary new material as required and enclose with new material that portion of the garage which was attached to the chimney of the house.

Saul H. Altholz, town attorney, was authorized to prepare and send to Alpert a letter and agreement to that effect.

Names Proposed
In keeping with the idea that members of the Planning Board should represent the different businesses in the town, names of various proposed people were listed. Members of the board were asked to approach several designated in order to start setting up the board.

Councilman Morris Sims brought in names of several he had approached and remarked that each had stated it would be an honor to serve in this capacity.

New Sheriff Named
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller announced Saturday the appointment of Paul John Taylor of Oswego as sheriff of Tioga County.

Taylor, 47, an undersheriff for the last 11 years, will serve through Dec. 31, filling out the term of Howard O. Searles, who died.

Why We Say--

FARM RACE: This phrase was widely used around 1790, when farmers in England began a race with each other to get their fruit to market before others so that the selling price would be higher. Special carts were made for carrying apples, but at night bands of farmers would knock over carts to prevent competition. We now use the phrase for interfering or wrecking plans. And George Bernard Shaw revived its use in modern times in his play "The Apple Cart." Oddly enough, the Romans had a similar saying.

Fire Prevention Program Starts Today in Hurley

The Hurley Fire Department today launched its 1962 Fire Prevention program to be held in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week.

In a letter to Ernest Myer of the Hurley School, Chief Kenneth Cudney outlined a contest to be held in the Hurley School for all grades. This contest will terminate during Fire Prevention Week, October 7 to 14, and prizes will be awarded to the winners on Sunday, Oct. 14 at the Hurley Fire Department Open House.

Chief Cudney stated that it is especially appropriate to open the Fire Prevention Program in the school since the keynote of this year's Fire Prevention Week is "Teach Our Children."

The program will consist of a poster contest in grades 1 to 4 with the theme "Fire Fighters in Action" and an essay contest in grades 5 and 6 with the theme "Fire Safety in the Home."

Posters and essays will be judged by the chief and line officers of the Hurley Fire Department on the basis of originality, composition and neatness. Winners will be announced in the Hurley School on Thursday, Oct. 11.

The Hurley firemen also plan to conduct other activities during Fire Prevention Week such as distribution of fire prevention literature, placing posters throughout the district and fire fighting demonstrations at the Open House. The department has planned this program in order to emphasize to the public the ever present danger of fire and how many of the causes can be eliminated.

"Each year, millions of dollars are irretrievably lost as a result of fire," it is the goal of the officers and men of the Hurley Fire Department to attempt to minimize this loss through public information programs such as the one announced today," Chief Cudney said.

Ellenville Vols

was still undetermined today, Deputy Fire Chief William McCormick Jr. said.

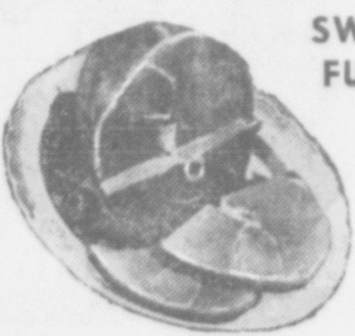

Damage from fire was confined primarily to the cellar beams but there was considerable smoke damage in both stores. Due to the heavy smoke firemen found it impossible to enter the cellar and locate the fire without aid of air-packs. Air-packs were obtained from Kerhonkson, Accord and Napanoch to assist the Ellenville firemen. The fire was brought under control by use of cellar-nozzles.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices fell sharply in heavy trading early today.

Losses of fractions to a point or more were taken by blue chips, while declines ran from 2 points or more among the volatile "growth" issues, and aerospace stocks.

The steep decline Friday broke through the 600 level in the Dow Jones industrial average and led a number of analysts to believe the stage is now set for a "test" of the May-June lows.

Opinion in the street was that a cutting-back of about one third in the amount of the summer rally would conform with past history of such movements.

Some stable blocks were traded at lower prices. American Stock Exchange prices moved lower. Corporate bonds declined.

Lieut. Governor Lauds GOP Efforts At Hurley Rally

Republican programs of the last four years represent a distillation of the best thinking of all the State's citizens, Lieut. Governor Malcolm Wilson told a large crowd Saturday at the first annual rally and barbecue of the Town of Hurley Republican Club at Walton's Grove.

More than 400 persons attended the event and greeted the lieutenant governor and several other well known Republican officials.

Fifth Appearance

The appearance of Lieut. Gov. Wilson Saturday afternoon was the first since he was renominated for another term at the State Republican Convention held last week in Buffalo. It was his fifth appearance in Ulster County.

"It is the very special pride of our party," Lieut. Governor Wilson said, "that we Republicans have always approached our responsibilities of citizenship firmly committed to the proposition that the best politics is good government."

"Throughout the length and breadth of our State, representatives of our Party charged with the administration of local government at the village, town, city and the county level have been working to identify themselves with the people. This identification has made the Republican Party a vigorous, vibrant voice for all the people. This same identification has been the objective of those of us who have served at Albany in the executive and legislative branches during the past four years under the leadership of a Governor whose every thought and act has but a single motivation—the best interests of all the people of our State."

Cites Partnership

"Undergirding the structure of good government which we have designed and built at Albany has been effective partnership between the executive team and the Republican members of the Legislature who come from every area of our State. This type of cooperative effort—singularly productive in terms of the general public interest—is uniquely within the capacity of the Republican Party. For historically and practically, only with Republicans in office at Albany, does every area of the State speak."

The Republican Party represents the broadest spectrum of thought. The Republican Party embraces the widest range of ideas.

"The end result has been the magnificent record of four years of teamwork government with maximum citizen participation."

State Debt Reduced

Wilson pointed out that under the leadership of Governor Rockefeller 70 separate steps to give New York a good business climate and provide jobs have been taken. These steps include 1800 major plant expansions or new plants for the past three years. Such investments have totalled $7 billion. The Lieutenant Governor stressed that pay-as-you-go financing has saved the taxpayers countless millions of dollars. The tax-financed State debt has been reduced $85 million to $328 million. Debt service has dropped from $53 million to $40 million annually.

Town of Hurley Councilman Jack Burlingham and John E. Marquardt were co-chairmen of the committee in charge of Saturday's event.

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, chairman of Ulster County Republican Committee, was toastmaster at the barbecue, assisted by Marquardt, who introduced several party leaders.

Guests Introduced

Introduced were Howard C. St. John, chairman of the City Republican Committee, Town of Hurley Supervisor Charles Relyea, Henry Hartley, Saugerties, candidate for coroner; Sheriff Claude Bell, candidate for reelection; Peter Weider, president of Town of Hurley Republican Club; City Judge Joseph Saccoccia, Bernhardt S. Kramer, assistant to Congressman J. Ernest Wharton; Assistant Attorney General Maurice Goldberg; Woodstock; Jesse McHugh, chairman of the County Board of Supervisors; Mrs. Rose LeFever, vice chairman of the County Republican Committee.

Other guests included Mrs. Malcolm Wilson, Mrs. Kenneth Wilson, Mrs. Maurice Goldberg, Mrs. Bernhardt S. Kramer, Lieut. Governor Wilson and Assemblyman Wilson, both presiding the Town of Hurley Re-son, where the army rebellion began last week.

Self Proclaimed

Guido had promised elections by October 1963, with new officials taking office the following May.

In an apparent reference to followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron, Guido said all sectors of the population will be free to take part in politics provided they adhere to democratic principles.

While proclaiming themselves anti-Peronists, a rebel community said the problem of the Peronist masses can be solved only by winning them over to democratic processes.

When the Peronists won victories in provincial and congressional elections last March, the military high command overthrew President Arturo Frondizi, blaming him for permitting Peronists to resume political activity. They installed Guido and he nullified the election results.

11 Civilians Killed

In five days of fighting involving tanks, artillery and jet fighters, 11 civilian bystanders were killed and 43 wounded. Military losses were put at 3 dead and 12 wounded.

Two military leaders are under arrest—Gen. Juan Carlos Lora, former commander in chief, and Gen. Bernardino Labayru, former chief of staff.

Setting out to form a new cabinet, Guido called back Alvaro Alsogaray, the strong man of his government who submitted his resignation along with all other ministers last week to give the president a free hand.

In addition to the economics ministry, Alsogaray was made acting interior minister. This gives him control over the nation's security forces.

$60 Fines on Traffic And Vehicle Charges

Four drivers were fined $60 in city court today on vehicle and traffic charges. Kurt Lutjens, 51, of Box 224, Kingston, charged with speeding paid $15 and was fined $10 on the charge that he drove an unregistered vehicle. Ralph Skatrud, of Lake Katrine, and William Stapleburg, of West Hurley, charged with speeding, paid $15 each and Anthony LaRocca, of 44 Post Street, charged with lack of registration, paid $5.

publican Club for arranging the successful rally and barbecue. Supervisor Relyea extended his praise to the committee chairmen and workers and during the afternoon candidates seeking office in the November election were introduced.

CAR IN FATAL CRASH—A mass of twisted and broken fabric, steel and glass is all that remains of the 1959 Cadillac sedan in which Charles Riccardi, 67, of Glasco lost his life Friday night in a head-on collision on Route 209 at Accord. Authorities inspecting the vehicle said the force of the crash pushed the engine back into the front seat. Riccardi, a prominent resident of Glasco and Saugerties, owned the Riccardi Bowling Center in Saugerties, was postmaster at Glasco for many years, and served as vice president of Saugerties Board of Education. Troopers said Riccardi was proceeding south when he suddenly veered into the northbound lane and crashed into a truck-crane owned by Kingston Crane Company, and operated by Theodore J. Stanki, 34, of RD 3, Kingston. Coroner Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson today gave a verdict of accidental death due to a ruptured aorta and lacerations of the heart.

Live With Paper Losses
In Stocks With a Future

Q "Last year I purchased 50 shares of Thrifty Drug at 61. At its recent level of 30, it has been making me very depressed. Also in my portfolio are 126 shares of Long Island Lighting purchased at $22 per share. Do you advise selling both at current levels—the loss on one and the capital gain on the other offsetting each other? At present I am solvent and not pressed for cash." M. H.

A My answer depends entirely on the extent to which you are distressed by your loss in Thrifty Drug. If it is seriously disturbing you to the extent of affecting your nervous system or your ability to sleep, I would make the two sales you are considering.

If you simply—as we all do—feel badly about a paper loss but can live with it, I would retain both stocks. You happened to buy Thrifty at a time of excessive overvaluation—but it is a good stock with a sound growth record which now seems reasonably priced.

Q "I own stock in Birdboro Corporation. It pays no dividend and I never gets anywhere. Should I sell it or hold with the hope that it will recover?" R. E.

A I get a lot of letters along these lines and they are very difficult to answer.

I don't know what other stocks you own and whether you need income or growth. I am going to assume that you want a little of each—in which case I advise you to sell your stock.

Birdboro is typical of a great many small, well-managed firms which—by the very nature of their business—are probably not going to get anywhere for some time to come. The company makes steel mill equipment and reached its peak in profits in 1958. Since then it has trended lower in earnings, as the steel business itself has. The whole industry has problems which are not readily solvable.

I suggest a switch into Ludlow Corp.

Not New Position

Dr. Holcomb said, "This appointment fills a place on our staff that is not a new position. For a two-year period, we provided funds for a health educator who served with the Board of Cooperative Educational Services to demonstrate the values of a Health Coordinator. To do this, our administrator carried on without a professional assistant. It is the feeling of our TB Association's Board of Directors and the executive committee of the Heart Chapter that the appointment of Miss Bower as associate director will mean that our organizations can extend our health program and community services in the important areas of Chronic Respiratory Disease and the field of Cardiovascular Disease."

The Ulster County TB and Health Association, Inc. and the Heart Chapter of Ulster County share headquarters at 124 Green Street.

Policeman Slips, Fleeing Ex-Con Killed by Shot

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—An accidental shot from the pistol of a policeman who slipped on wet ground Saturday night killed a fleeing ex-convict wanted for parole violation.

Police in nearby East Syracuse said John Kicak, 46, was apprehended in a grill and was taken outside. As the two patrolmen were about handcuff him, he broke away and ran down an alley, the policemen said.

Patrolman Edward King said he fired two warning shots in the air. Then, he said, his foot slipped and the pistol discharged a third time. The bullet struck Kicak in the back.

Kicak had been shot and wounded critically by police in Syracuse in 1950 while attempting to flee after he had been arrested for a holdup. He was released recently from Attica State Prison, where he had served 12 years.

NEW READING ROOM FOR CHILDREN—

The need for additional space in the Children's Room of the Kingston City Library brought about the renovation of an old book storage room. All the work was done by the Library custodian, Edwin F. Brandt who, with scrap lumber, paint, wire screening and a lot of work, created a colorful and comfortable room for the children. The room is equipped with benches, bookshelves and glass door, the latter a gift to the library. The tile design of the floor was also done by Mr. Brandt who then painted the room pink. Story hour for the children will commence the middle of October with two groups—pre-school and grades through six. The Children's Room is open Monday through Saturday from 1-5 p. m. (Freeman photo)

Your Community Chest Contributions at Work

Your contributions in the one-for-many 1962 Ulster County Community Chest, meant $6,247 for the Association for the Help of Retarded Children Inc.

Here is how they are using your money to help others:

An organization of and for parents with the common problem of a mentally retarded child, AHRC is an agency in the county where parents can receive assistance in making an emotional adjustment to their problem and in diagnosis, assistance and direction in treatment of the child.

AHRC was organized on a national scale by parents of mentally retarded children who joined together in self-help because no assistance was available elsewhere. A branch of the national organization, the local Community Chest agency is supervised by volunteer parents with retarded children. They are assisted by trained staff therapists, local physicians and psychologists, and by state facilities. They offer the following specialized help to children and parents of retarded children throughout the county, regardless of location, race, color, creed or age.

For the child: A Day Care Center in Kingston for children of pre-school age or development—supervised by parents and trained therapists who diagnose, analyze and evaluate child development and progress.

A Speech Clinic in Kingston and Ellenville—for analysis and treatment of speech difficulties. A bi-weekly program of planned recreation and training—sewing and household arts for adult retardates particularly.

A Summer Day Camp—supervised recreation for children with group activity and individual training in arts and crafts.

Holiday parties and distribution of Christmas gifts to children without relatives.

Educational, psychological and therapeutic program—to rehabilitate the child and conduct research into causes and prevention of the disease.

Public programs—to enlighten and develop in the public and the parent wholesome attitudes and understanding of the disease.

Small Colleges To Survive, Says Colgate Official

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP)—The Acting president of Colgate University expressed confidence today that small, independent colleges could survive, despite aggressive competition from state-supported schools.

But, said James A. Storing, the private colleges must be willing to reassess and revitalize their programs.

Storing made the remarks in a speech prepared for the university's Founders' Day Convocation, marking the start of Colgate's 144th year.

Storing said about 40 per cent of all college students now attend private institutions. But he added that some predictions indicated the number might drop to 4 per cent by 1975.

He expressed the view, however, "that the tide is turning and we can probably look to a brighter future for the independent college."

Only one of the first five U.S. presidents did not live to be 70 years old: George Washington, who died at the age of 67.

the help of contribution to the Community Chest, AHRC hopes in 1963 to extend use of their special help to the parents and children in Ulster County.

In the 1963 Ulster County Community Chest drive, all are asked to contribute a "fair share"—to help them do their special job of helping others.

Stay Continued In Lawson Case

Supreme Court Justice Lawrence H. Cooke has signed an order which provides a continued stay of the demotion of State Police Captain John J. Lawson, Fishkill, to lieutenant.

Attorneys for Lawson, Edward A. Miller and Lloyd L. Rosenthal, Poughkeepsie, received a signed copy of Justice Cooke's decision denying a motion by State Police Superintendent Arthur Cornelius Jr. to dismiss Lawson's petition seeking a hearing on his demotion.

Superintendent Cornelius has 20 days after receiving a copy of the order in which to submit an answer to the petition if he desires.

Lawson, former commander of Troop K, was demoted to lieutenant by Cornelius in July and ordered transferred to Batavia. However, pending a decision, both the demotion and transfer have been stayed in Supreme Court. Lawson still is drawing captain's pay.

Lions Club to Hear About Eye Safety

The director of industrial service of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, James E. O'Neill, will be the featured guest speaker at Tuesday's meeting of the Kingston Lions Club in the Governor Clinton Hotel. O'Neill has handled the industrial program of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. His job function, which includes administration of the Wise Owl eye safety incentive plan, requires him to travel throughout the entire country in the hope of stimulating interest among industry and technical schools about the many advantages that can be derived from adequate vision testing and eye safety procedures.

Lion President Stewart Munson said "We feel most fortunate to secure someone with O'Neill's background. I'm sure the program will be very stimulating."

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—It was a weekend on which NBC launched some new comedy shows on its network — and by curious coincidence all the chuckles were wrapped in military uniforms.

There was the nautical "Ensign O'Toole" (probably the most likely of the group to succeed), the Army-based "Don't Call Me Charlie," and one about military school cadets called "McKeever and the Colonel," about which the less said the better.

"Ensign O'Toole" stars a most ingratiating young man, Dean Jones, in the title role. In manner and sometimes speech reminiscent of a young James Stewart, he plays a trouble-prone young Navy officer with an encyclopedic mind and total recall.

"Don't Call Me Charlie" centers Stewartish young man — this one an Army veterinarian. Most of the opening show was devoted to getting him established in Paris.

This one seems rather pleasant and low key. "McKeever and the Colonel" has one of the most raucous laugh tracks heard in recent seasons, as well as the fewest laughs. It is set in an early evening Sunday spot, so presumably it is aimed at the younger members of the family.

It is one of those shows about precocious kids and stupid adults, and the youngsters win every time — or at least little McKeever does. Maybe the small fry will take the show. I doubt if parents and educators will.

A new cartoon series — ABC's plunge into color programs — also came into view: "The Jetsons." This is the usual suburban setup — idiot father, cute-trick mother, teen-age daughter with ponytail and small brother. But there's a difference. They live in the year 2062 on what is apparently a space platform where everything is done by pushing buttons and launching rockets. A very, very little of this can go a long way.

There was also the return of Jack Paar to NBC on Friday night with an hour program in prime evening time. I don't know exactly what I expected from Paar in his opening show, perhaps a Roman circus with real lions or something else big and splashy.

Thus, I was dismayed at the outset when Jack walked out of the shadows on a big stage and apparently picked up exactly where he had left off — a few prickly remarks directed toward some of his old "Tonight" show targets.

But, after a song from Robert Goulet, he went on to his own film reconstruction of wartime events involving President Kennedy when he was a PT boat captain. It was an absorbing account, Paar's very personalized approach to a piece of history. It had special meaning because it was also Paar's own return to the South Pacific where he too had served.

The program and viewpoint were offbeat and attention holding, unlike anything else being broadcast. I enjoyed it.

Recommend tonight: "Opening Night," special, CBS, 8-9 (ed)—Lucille Ball, Red Skelton and others in a variety hour; "The Road to Button Bay," special, CBS, 9-10—documentary on the senior Girl Scout roundup; "The New Loretta Young Show," premiere, CBS, 10-11 — new series with Miss Young playing a rich widow with seven kids; "The Tonight Show," 11:15-1 a.m.—Donald O'Connor, host.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices have been moving in a fairly narrow range and small volume for about two months now. And brokers are beginning to ask: Where is the public?

The general public didn't panic after the stock market breaks of late May and June. Some of the fancier purchases stock owners had planned to make with their paper profits—while they still looked like profits instead of paper—were shelved. But on the whole the public went right on spending about as usual. That is, for things other than stocks.

Such spare cash as the average fellow has accumulated since then apparently has gone into various forms of savings rather than into stock purchases.

The July rally and the backing and filling in stock prices since then has been explained in various ways by the Wall Street experts, although it is far from certain that their explanations satisfy even them.

But most of them agree that the public has pretty much stayed out of the market since its sharp tumbles. And the occasional flurries of buying—or of selling, like last Friday—are generally credited to the professionals.

By public, the professional means the newcomer, the amateur or the small investor who buys a few shares now and then. Some may come into the market when they think they can make a quick killing. More are likely to buy when they think a small investment now—usually in something they regard as a growth stock—will increase in price manifold over the years and take care of such items as educating the children or cushioning retirement.

So the public is attracted to rising markets, wary during setbacks, and downright standoffish after a real tumble.

When the market had its summer rally, brokers hoped the public would return. But a few buyers fitting that term showed up.

Most buying apparently was by professionals picking up bargains or sighting chances of in-and-out trading on sharply fluctuating individual stocks. Or the buying was by the multitude of funds—mutuals, pensions, and trusts—with accumulated income to put to work.

Public apathy persisting after Labor Day could be due to all the economic and political uncertainties. Most citizens may be waiting to see if business picks up this fall and if profits increase. The public didn't panic during all the talk about an imminent recession, but also it apparently isn't buying any boom either.

It may be watching what comes out of Congress in the closing days of the session, or what the United Nations does about all the trouble spots—in the world—Berlin, Cuba, Southeast Asia, the Congo.

But just as likely the public may be waiting for another bull market to get going, no matter how mysterious the cause may seem to the average fellow at the time. Until the public sees a chance to make more in the market than it can get from savings institutions, stocks may have less than compelling appeal.

Brokers know that this attitude can change quickly. Mass psychology is buffeted by many currents, some of them quite unforeseeable, and the number seems to grow each year.

The majority of stockowners apparently held onto their stocks, especially if they were bought well before the sharp rise in late 1961 and the sharper drop this year so that what they lost were paper profits.

Some old favorites have fallen in price enough to be in the bargain class, or in a price range that fits more traditional notions of the proper relationship to earning prospects. And old-time investors will be buying when they can.

The public, as Wall Street uses that term, may wait till the market takes on glamour again before returning to the board rooms.

Post New Names Of Communities And Area Creeks

The new names of two communities and two creeks in Ulster and Greene Counties were among 25 accepted by the government as official this week, according to an Associated Press Special Service report.

The names generally are being used locally, anyway, but for government maps and publications the stamp of the U.S. Board on Geographic Names, a branch of the Interior Department, was needed.

For instance, Jefferson Corners, near Panther Lake in Oswego County, now is Jamison Corners. Communities in Greene, Ulster, Westchester and Dutchess County also were affected. Some were sites named officially for the first time.

The board said it had attempted to correct misspellings, eliminate outmoded or misapplied names or give appropriate names to sites previously unidentified.

Changes included:

Greene
Condon Hollow — a valley less than one mile long about one mile northwest of West Kill (formerly Turk Hollow).

Turk Hollow — a valley about two miles long about two miles northeast of Halcott Center and 40 miles southeast of Coopers-town.

West Settlement Creek — about 2.5 miles long and flowing generally southeast to Vly Creek about one-tenth of a mile south of Halcott Center (formerly Brownell Creek).

Greene-Ulster
Stony Clove Creek — about 9.5 miles long and flowing generally southwest to Esopus Creek at Phoenicia (formerly Bush Kill and Stony Creek).

Oswego
Bass Lake — located two miles northwest of Kasog (formerly Black Pond).

Beaver Creek — a six-mile-long stream which flows generally south and southeast and enters the Mad River about six miles north of Redfield (formerly Beaver River).

Black Pond — about one mile north-northwest of Kasog and one-half mile south of Bass Lake (formerly Long Pond).

Edick Pond — located in a swampy area four miles northwest of Williamstown (formerly Round Pond).

Gillman Creek — about 3.6 miles long and flowing generally southward to Beaver Creek about seven miles north of Redfield (formerly Willow Creek).

West Branch Gillman Creek — about 1.2 miles long and flowing generally southeast to Gillman Creek about 8.5 miles north of Redfield (formerly Gillman Creek).

Willow Creek — about one mile long and flowing generally southwest to Gillman Creek about 7.5 miles north of Redfield.

Dutchess
Moffitt Pond — about 1.6 miles northwest of Verbank and 3.3 miles southwest of Millbrook (formerly Moffitt Pond).

Pell Lake — in the headwaters of Cooperstown Brook about 1.2 and 3.1 miles west-northwest of Wingdale (formerly Lapp Pond).

Fossil plants found in Antarctica indicate that the frozen continent supported tropical vegetation some 200 million years ago.

From Male Side

Speakers Berate Women Executives

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—When 34 top level women executives submit to mass psychoanalysis there's no telling what will happen.

That was the case this week at the University of Michigan. The 34 women executives, representing 19 states and the Virgin Islands, paid $500 each to attend a leadership seminar—the first for women.

What they got for their money was a cold, cruel look at themselves.

For five days the women raced through 12 hours of lectures and discussions daily and two hours of homework nightly, only to discover—in some cases—that they weren't executives at all.

They were berated by 10 speakers—all male—who exposed their weaknesses thus: "The woman executive is too emotional . . . She devotes too much time to home and family to become successful . . . She lets her sex interfere with her job."

The ladies persevered, for the most part. But there were times when they reared up, ready to fight. One, Genevieve Hazzard of Detroit, Campbell-Ewald Co.'s only woman account executive, objected strongly when Perrin Stryker, author of "The Men From The Boys," urged them to put aside their maternal instincts if they wanted to succeed.

Although unmarried, Miss Hazzard insisted that a woman could lead a balanced life—dividing herself between family and business—without harming either one.

Michigan was the birthplace of the school safety patrol system.

Falls Strike May Halt Production Of Navy Aircraft

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—A strike by 320 technicians threatened to close three Bell Aerosystems Co. plants today because of the possibility that 1,300 non-striking production workers would refuse to cross picket lines.

The company said a shutdown would halt work on $75 million in government contracts, including a new Navy contract for production of vertical-takeoff aircraft.

It was not known Sunday night if the production workers, members of the United Auto Workers Union, would respect picket lines at the Wheatfield, North Tonawanda and Model City plants.

The technicians, members of Local 206 of the American Federation of Technical Engineers, struck Sunday after rejecting Bell's final offer on a three-year contract. The union won bargaining rights.

Bell employs a total of 3,400 workers in the three area plants.

The major issue in the strike was the union's demand that the technicians be reclassified as salaried workers, to gain them additional fringe benefits. Bell put the technicians on hourly wage status two years ago.

Bell instead offered a 30-cent wage increase over three years, plus an eight-cent fringe benefit increase each year.

The average hourly rate for the technicians is $3.17.

The union began picketing the plants Sunday night.

Last spike in construction of the Alaska railroad was driven by Warren G. Harding on July 15, 1923.

I see no auto accident cases and there are dates written at the top of the clippings of 1894 on one page. One item, not dated like the others tells about Policeman Heppner arresting a woman who had too much to drink on the Strand and "took her to jail."

There were many items in this scrap book. For instance two boys one 15 and one 13 were picked up by Policeman Heppner for violating a city ordinance for they went swimming in the Rondout Creek near Rhinebeck ferry.

"They forgot to don trunks when they went swimming in the Rondout Creek. Groves imposed a fine of $1 on each boy."

It reads like a different world, yet it was the same city of Kingston and Rondout and some of the names are familiar. One item tells about Policeman Heppner having to pick up two small boys, who took $5 from the money drawer of James Farrell who ran a small candy store at the Sleightsburgh ferry. Officer Heppner saw them on the Strand near McMillan's corner about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

He started to arrest them when they took to their heels down the Strand. Heppner chased them through Broadway to the Mary Powell dock where he caught them and took them to the lock-up. Each boy accused the other and said their father told them to steal and searched them every night. They said that he took the money away from them that night. I take it they were brothers.

There are a number of items on Officer Heppner picking up peddlers who did not take out a license to peddle. One item tells about "a peddler of feather dusters, eluding Officer Heppner." The item goes into great detail telling about Heppner "shadowing" the feather duster peddler on Union Avenue, now Broadway. I would say, a bundle of feather dusters are not easy to hide.

Sometimes Officer Heppner took it easy, as one item relates that he and Officer Sullivan went fishing in Esopus Lake. It seems B. F. McKenzie told them they could catch some black bass. Sullivan broke the record by catching a black bass that weighed five pounds and two ounces, being the largest ever caught in the lake. Heppner's catch was a tiny sunfish.

Why So Many Kinds Of Life Insurance?

It almost seems as if companies dream up different kinds of life insurance policies just to confuse people. However, each policy is designed for a specific need. Basically, life insurance is intended to protect, but each person's needs are different from those of others. The young father may need maximum protection and savings for his family at low premiums. Another may assume a temporary debt or a mortgage and wants to assure his family it will be paid off in the event of his death. A business or professional man needs to give his family protection while building his own retirement fund.

If you have any questions about the type of insurance best fitted to your needs and budget, come in and talk them over with me. There is no obligation.

Old Timer's Civil War Notes

By C. A. WINCHELL, Shokan, N. Y.

One of the best known Civil War veterans in the Town of Olive was Asa Bishop who was born, April 15, 1842, at Tongore. He was one of 11 sons of Jacob and Catherine Eckert Bishop, whose home was near the site of the present Ashokan Dam. At the age of 14 he went to work in a shoe factory at Natick, Mass., and in September of 1861 he enlisted in the 20th New York State Militia or 80th Volunteer Infantry. He served under General McDowell in the Army of the Potomac, was wounded at Gettysburg and mustered out of Federal Service Sept. 5, 1864.

Died in Service
Among the Olive soldiers who died during the Great War were the following:

Augustus Hinkley, enlisted April 18, 1861, Co. D, 20th Infantry, died Jan. 18, 1863.
Alonso Neher, March 23, 1865, 5th Artillery — died May 21, 1865, at Alexandria, Va.
Milton VanLeuven, Feb. 6, 1864, 5th Artillery — killed Feb. 11, 1865.
David Personous, September 5, 1861, 20th D.
Dewitt Delemater, Sept. 5, 1861, 20th D. — Washington, June 1, 1862.
Jeremiah Osborn, Aug. 3, 1861, Ninth Regiment — Dec. 14, 1862.
William H. Burtie, Feb. 16, 1864, 20th B — City Point, Va., Sept. 18, 1864.
George M. Roosa, Aug. 1, 1862, 120th A — Falmouth, Va., December, 1863.
John W. Davis, 20th D — Second Bull Run.

Warlike Dilemma
The story is told of a Union soldier who departed for the front leaving behind a young wife who a few months afterwards gave birth to a child, and subsequently the name of her husband appeared among those killed in Virginia. A body said to have been that of her husband was sent to her and the remains were interred. The lady remained single for about a year, was married again and now has a child by her second husband. Recently, the wife was surprised, to say the least, at reading the name of her soldier husband in a list of men who had just been paroled from a Confederate prison. The woman now has a problem: two husbands and a child by each of them.

Father Abe His Man
P. McCarroll, a wounded soldier in the 74th New York Infantry, writes from the Philadelphia General Hospital to Andrew E. Jansen of Kingston: "If I had 365 votes in the next election I would give them all to Father Abraham. I was in several battles before being wounded at Malvern Hill, July 1, 1862. I was in Co. H, Fifth Regiment, Dan Sickles' Excelsior Brigade, Captain Sickles, uncle of the general, commanding. A ball went right through my thigh, cut the nerve and caused partial paralysis of my whole right leg and foot. I laid on the field till July 5 when I was taken to Richmond where my fight only began."

"I wish I had the power to send some of our peace-loving citizens back home to that Libby Prison, to receive the same kind of treatment that I did. Why, Sir, the words 'peace' and 'armistice' are enough to make the flesh creep on my bones. If I had a brother that was to run for president with those two words in his mouth, and ask for my vote, I would make the very teeth in his head rattle like marbles in a tin cup. I would knock him down and kick him like a football!"

Warlike Wit and Humor
The distinguished Confederate General Hood when he started out with his big army a few weeks ago, announced that he was "going to Nashville or to Hell." He hasn't got to Nashville, Tenn., and is now reported to be digging in for the other.

A new invention is a pair of musical boots. Every pressure of the foot produces a waltz, or a mazurka or what will you. Now what sort of tune would it play if you kicked a man down stairs?

Our Mrs. Partington says that "where a woman has once married with a congealing heart, and beats responsive to her own, she never enters the maritime state again."

Sidney Smith tells of an orator so dry that if you were to bore holes in him, sawdust would pour out.

"Madam," said a gentleman to his wife, "let me tell you plainly that facts are very stubborn things." "Dear me, you don't say so," returned the lady. "What a fact you must be!"

Hymeneal Notes
Married, July 16, 1864, at Eddyville by the Rev. J. G. Oakley, Charles H. Longyear and Catherine Duncombe, both of Eddyville.
Married, at St. John's Church

In Village of Kingston, July 18, '64, by the Rev. George Waters, Theodore Julius Harman Daum, Boston, and Elizabeth Foxcroft, daughter of the officiating clergyman.

The awards were presented on how well each boy could perform the skills he learned during instruction.

Health for All

Home Help For The Handicapped

Mrs. Green is 88 but she was really spry until a few months ago. She kept house for her widowed daughter, a librarian, moving about her daily chores efficiently. Then, one day, going down the stairs she fell and broke her hip. She spent many months in the hospital. Now she is ready to leave, but all kinds of problems arise. She is no longer so spry. She can get around the house with a cane, but it is obviously out of the question for her to resume her housekeeping activities. And she cannot be left alone all day since there are many things she can at present no longer do for herself. Her daughter cannot afford to keep her in the hospital indefinitely. She cannot afford a full-time housekeeper. She can't leave her job to look after her mother, because it is her sole source of income.

To solve just such a problem, faced by thousands of families, the federal government has authorized three million dollars for local experimental projects to see if it is practical to provide home nursing and home-making care for the chronically ill and aged. Projects have been started in eighteen states, which have matched the funds provided by the government. Local health agencies, voluntary and official, are cooperating.

If a nurse can visit Mrs. Green a few times a week, if a home-maker could come in at noon to make her lunch and stay with her until her daughter gets home, some of the problems would be solved.

The number of elderly people is increasing steadily. They represent special problems for themselves and their families. It is hoped that workable plans for home care of the chronically ill and aged will emerge from these experimental projects.

LITTLE LIZ

The trouble with running into debt is that before long you begin running into creditors.

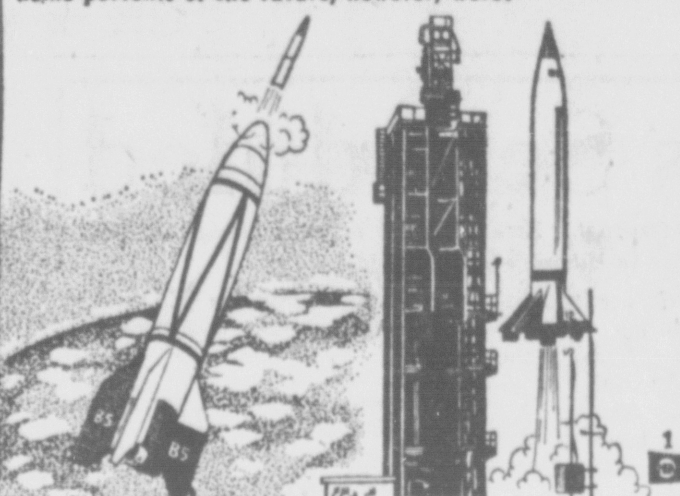

Sputnik Plus Five

The race into space had its beginnings in the aftermath of World War II, when both the U.S. and Russia stripped Germany of her rocket facilities and scientists. The Army overran the Nazi underground V-2 factory at Nordhausen and captured enough parts to make 100 of the terrifying rockets. This windfall was sent to White Sands Proving Grounds in New Mexico.

(1) Prelude to Space

But practical use of rocketry—either for weapons or space travel—seemed remote in the late '40s and early '50s. Some portents of the future, however, were:

The WAC-Corporal, which, boosted by a wartime V-2, set an amazing altitude record of 244 miles in 1949 ... and the Viking, a research vehicle to prove out new design and guidance ideas. It led directly to the Vanguard Project.

By Don Oakley and Ralph Lane

In 1955, space first made news when the U.S. announced it intended to place a basketball-size instrument satellite into orbit around the earth as part of the forthcoming International Geophysical Year. "What's an earth satellite?" people asked—and promptly forgot about it.

Investor Forum

DEBTS AND VALUES

Within the past 25 years, the Dow-Jones industrial stock averages have advanced about 700 per cent. During this same time, the Federal debt has increased around 1,000 per cent. There is a logical relationship between these two figures. And investors, charting a future course, should heed them.

Late in August, 1962, the gross public debt of the United States Government was $300,898,000,000. A year earlier it was $292,616,000,000. Thus, in a year the debt increased more than eight billions of dollars. That is over 20 millions a day, Sundays and holidays included.

Too much of this debt is monetized by America's banking system. When the people's savings absorb the debt, inflation is curbed. But when, as at present, savings can't do this, the banking system must. And it does.

On August 22, 1962, the 12 Federal reserve banks had bought outright $30,143,000,000 of United States Government securities. During the year from late August, 1961, to late August, 1962, the outright purchases of such securities increased by $2,884,000,000!

When will the growth of the governmental debt and the monetization of this debt be stopped? Nobody knows.

With the dangerous military situations in Berlin, the Far

East, and Cuba steadily developing greater proportions, Government costs are likely to grow, making balanced budgets in Washington very difficult.

The United States Government is in the very center of the free world. Her financial responsibilities will increase. And if national income does not produce enough tax money to pay Uncle Sam's enormous bills (as seems certain), then we shall have more deficit financing and more inflationary dollars.

For years, this column has been saying that any investor who, unnecessarily, sells common stocks for deteriorating dollars, is following an unsound course.

Today, investors not only should buy and hold sound common stocks for income and growth but also as a measure of inflation protection.

Every investor is caught up in the gigantic figures mentioned in this article. It is impossible for him to isolate himself from the social, economic, political, and military forces operating in the world.

High federal taxes, continual budget deficits, and large borrowing all combine to weaken the buying power of the dollar.

If millions of Americans better understood what is going on in this country, and if they should buy sound common stocks to protect their money to some degree, the Dow-Jones industrial averages would advance 100 points in a hurry.

All investors should carry cash balances in banks to pay at least six months' ordinary expenses. They should own insurance policies when such protection is logical. And with the rest of their money they should buy and hold the best common stocks in America, disregarding violent price changes.

Never in the history of America has intelligent money-management been more necessary than at present.

GIFT FROM A HOUSE GUEST

Q: Last week my daughter invited a young man to our house for the weekend. I went all out to make this weekend a pleasant one for him. When he returned home he sent me a small gift with his bread-and-butter note. My daughter insists I write a thank-you note for the gift. I don't believe it is necessary in this instance, as the gift was sent in payment, so to speak, for hospitality shown him. I would like your opinion on this matter.

A: The gift was the result of an impulse of friendship and in no way a sense of obligation, and therefore you should certainly write and thank him for it.

Two Girls Go to a Dance

Q: The other evening a friend and I went to a church dance. During the evening, several young men came over and asked me to dance and I danced with them. On our way home my friend seemed rather peeved and, when I asked her what was the matter, she said that she thought I was very rude to dance and leave her sitting alone. She thinks I should have refused to dance unless she had a partner to dance with too. Don't you think her attitude unreasonable?

A: To go to a dance and refuse to dance would be very silly. You should, however, have introduced your friends to the girl you were with and hope that they would ask her to dance too.

Sending Wedding Announcements

Q: I am going to be married soon at a very small wedding with just the immediate families present. Many of my friends and relatives do, however, know of my forthcoming marriage. I would like to know if wedding announcements should be sent to them anyway or whether they should be sent only to those who do not know of my marriage?

A: Correctly, wedding announcements are sent to all those who were not invited to the wedding, whether they know of it or not.

Details concerning the announcing and christening of a baby are described in the new Emily Post Institute booklet entitled, "The New Baby." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Emily Post Institute, care of The Freeman. (A Bell Syndicate Feature)

The bride's short circular veil of tulle was held in place by a coronet of pearls and sequins. She carried a prayer book with white gladioli and showers of stephanotis.

Mrs. Thomas Morrissey of Kingston was the matron of honor. She wore a cocktail length gown of infra-draped brocade made with a high draped neckline and three quarter length sleeves and narrow bell skirt. Home Extension Service News

Now is the time to make a thorough inspection of your home heating system to minimize the possibility of a costly breakdown during the cold winter months ahead. Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent, stresses in the following article on heater inspection:

A check-up now by a reliable dealer and repairing any faulty equipment may save the family considerable money in two ways. First, it may prevent expensive repairs in mid-winter months. Also, it may disclose heat leaks that increase monthly fuel bills. It's worth pointing out, too that repairs often are considerably cheaper during the summer slack season than in the winter.

A study by the National LP-Gas Council, a non-profit trade association of the liquefied petroleum gas industry, revealed that 70 per cent of gas consumption in the home goes for heating. Of the remaining 30 per cent, 10 per cent goes for water heating, six each for cooking and refrigeration, five for an automatic gas incinerator and three for a clothes drier.

Inasmuch as home heating is by far the greatest single fuel expense for the home, it is important to make sure the heating system is in good condition.

There are five rules which can save home owners large sums of money during the winter if followed carefully. These include proper operation of the furnace, correct setting of the thermostat controls, adequate insulation of the home, installation of storm windows and doors, and, fifth, installation of weather stripping. A sixth saving can be added by eliminating the possibility of having the heating system knocked out by winter storms that may snap power lines and cut off fuel supply when it is most needed. An LP-Gas system, for example, is self-contained between the storage tank and the home, and will withstand any storms. This added safety is one reason LP-gas is becoming more and more popular among home owners on farms, in rural areas, small towns and other suburban sections beyond city gas mains.

Among the five savings, the first is proper operation of the heating system. Although today's modern gas furnaces are efficiently regulated by automatic thermostats, a heavy load may be placed on the controls and the furnace itself by partial stoppage of heat outlets. Registers and grills should be kept clean of heavy dust or dirt, free to carry a full load of warm air, never obstructed by rugs, drapes, or furniture.

Next, set the thermostat at a comfortable temperature and leave it alone as much as possible. Although the control is efficiently designed and precisely built, it is a sensitive instrument that may be damaged by continuous changing. It is all right to drop the thermostat at night—generally ten degrees lower is a comfortable setting—and then put it up in the morning, but don't "nag" at it numerous times.

Third, be sure the home is properly insulated. This varies according to what part of the nation the home is located in, and also what type of heating fuel is used. In most parts of the United States, homes fueled with LP-gas may be adequately insulated with four inches above the ceiling and three inches in the walls. For other "clean burning" fuels, this may have to be increased one-third to one-half for satisfactory insulation.

Storm windows and doors comprise the fourth money-saver. Large windows are pleasant during the warm months, but they allow considerable heat to escape during the winter. But by the same token, large doors permit extreme amounts of heat out each time they are opened. Storm windows and doors cut down considerably on such loss by forming a "trap" that holds in heat and keeps out cold. In the absence of storm windows, keeping curtains or drapes drawn during darkness will cut down heat loss, while open drapes on the sunny side will let in the sun's natural warmth.

Number five is weather stripping, for this will hold to a minimum of loss of heat through loose fittings and cracks around windows and doors. By reducing drafts not only does it cut down on fuel bills, it also cuts down on medical bills as a result of colds.

Open Heart Surgery Film Shown at 1st LPN Meeting of Year

The first of the 1962-63 regular monthly meetings of the Ulster County Division of the Licensed Practical Nurses of New York, Inc. was held at the home of Miss Margaret Bowen, 12 Elizabeth Street last Thursday night and was well attended.

A few of the students of the new school for practical nurses were also present to see the film on open heart surgery. They were welcomed by the organization and invited to attend any and all meetings of the local practical nurses association, which are held on every third Thursday from September to June. To encourage the students in their training course the Ulster County Division has offered a $25 award to the student attaining the highest average at the completion of schooling.

Miss Hazel Steed representing the Ulster County Tuberculosis & Health Association and the local Heart Chapter which is also associated with the State Heart Assembly and the American Heart Association presented the film and spoke on the importance of knowledge of the health services in the community. She said many of these services are not used to the full extent as people are unaware of them. The licensed practical nurses are the key to having people know of the variety of services that exist. Doctors are often much too busy to know the home situations and need the nurses to acquaint them with the family's position and these services in the community. The heart program is one of the best of the services.

Six years ago Kingston had a cardiac institute conducted here for all nurses. Such famous heart men as Dr. Robert Glover, Dr. Raymond Harris and Dr. Ralph Alley gave lectures and films. At one session a little girl was present who was well known to the local team. She had been extremely ill all her life. Every winter they did not expect her to live. She was examined by Dr. Goldberg and the operation performed successfully changing her life dramatically. Other cases were mentioned and then the film of actual open heart surgery shown including the child patient's recovery and dis-

The cast for the first play includes Dixon McGrath, Norman Claus, Raymond Caddy, Norman Shapiro, Hap Claus, Doris Urell, Robert Jolivet, Niel Singer, Frank Dams and Jack Doyle.

Associate memberships are now available from all active members of the company or may be secured by writing directly to Coach House Players Inc., 12 Augusta Street.

Orchestra Holding
1st Fall Rehearsal

The first fall rehearsal of the New Paltz College-Community Orchestra will take place on Tuesday at 7:15 p. m. on the campus of the State University College.

On the podium will be Dr. O. Lincoln Igou, Professor of Humanities, who will begin his 17th year of leadership in this capacity and in the musical activities of the college. The organization will continue to meet in the Music Room below the Auditorium.

Dr. Igou stated, when asked about membership, "We are a sixteen-to-sixty orchestra—truly a college-community group. We have a few talented high school musicians and some grandparents who are having a wonderful time. We have amateurs and professionals, local residents and commuters who drive as far as thirty miles or more each Tuesday to play with us for a few hours before they begin the return trip—all for the sheer pleasure of making music together."

"We have no budget, and there is no admission charge," he added. "Don't be deceived though, we play good music—a symphony and a concerto on practically every program—within the limitations of our modest average abilities."

The Orchestra is planning a concert on Tuesday, November 20th, after which there will be a mid-winter recess until the first of March.

All interested area musicians are invited to attend the Tuesday evening rehearsal with instruments, ready to begin serious work.

Freight Traffic
Back on Schedule

Freight traffic on the New York, New Haven and Railroad New Haven-Maybrook line was moving on schedule today after a nine-car derailment Saturday morning at Hopewell Junction, Town of East Fishkill.

Work crews removed wreckage of some of the cars and replaced 500 feet of track that had been ripped up.

Dutchess County Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan said two crew members riding in the caboose were shaken up but not injured.

Trainmaster Richard Cummings, Danbury, Conn., said the derailment occurred when a wheel broke on one freight car. Nine cars plunged off the tracks, but only two toppled over on their sides.

The train was westbound to Maybrook.

The woman had just hung up the phone when he rang the doorbell. And would you believe it, after all his explanation, the lady still insisted, "Anyone who drives as fast you, I wouldn't ride with him," and she slammed the door in his face.

American Team Picks Up Points

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

In the World Championship match, the combination of light opening bids — one by South and the other by West — gave America 13 International Match points.

East passed at both tables and the American South made one of those 11-point openings. Then the bidding went as shown in the box.

East opened the four of hearts. The deuce was played from dummy and West was in with the king. Had he shifted to a spade the game would not have made, but he did not know that North's spade club had been semipsychic and he led the nine of diamonds.

North went up with the ace, then played the queen of clubs. West held off once, but took his king on the next club lead. He led another diamond. East won and led another heart. At this point North could have finessed the jack and made 10 tricks, but North was happy to settle for nine. He played the ace and made his contract.

At the other table the Italian South could not open one club — it is an artificial bid with them — and the American West stuck in a "gulpic" spade bid — so-called because anyone who makes such a bid is likely to gulp. Anyway West wound up playing and making two spades.

Arlington Store Burglary Under Investigation

Poughkeepsie town police, assisted by area authorities today continued investigation of a burglary at Strickland's Liquor Store, 774 Main Street, Arlington, which needed intruders $1,865 in cash and 35 cases of liquor valued at $1,750.

Town Police Detective Sergeant Philip McCready said burglars smashed a rear window and entered the store sometime early Saturday after removing steel bars from a rear door. David Strickland, proprietor of the store, said the money stolen by the intruders had been left in an unlocked strong box in a desk. Police said the loot evidently had been carted off in a vehicle, which had been parked at the rear of the store not far from the Arlington firehouse. The burglary was discovered by an employee of the Mack and Frey store, next to Strickland's.

Maroon Stops Late Rally to Nip Suffern, 19-14, in Opener

Wills Steals 97th; But Is It A Record?

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's like this, Mr. Commissioner: We have a problem. It involves Maury Wills, a bunch of stolen bases, Ty Cobb, the record book and an asterisk or so.

Yes, that's right, he stole two more Sunday in his team's 156th game. That makes 97. Which, of course, is one more stolen base than Cobb got with Detroit in 156 games in 1915.

But the question is this, Mr. Commissioner: how does it go in the book? With an asterisk because of the longer schedule this year? Or without an asterisk? Or just how?

Oh, you never said anything about an asterisk?

How's that again? "I'm not making an immediate ruling because I don't think one is necessary. I'm using the same script as last year in the Maris situation. It doesn't involve 154 games or 156 games or 162 games. It involves the two different schedules."

Wills, the Dodger flash, swiped his 96th and 97th in Los Angeles' 12-2 loss to St. Louis Sunday, thereby attaining the highest total of any baserunner in a single season in modern history.

Ruling by Frick

So he's got a record, but from an interpretation of Commissioner Ford Frick's ruling of a year ago, it will go in the books with the notation that it was made in 162 games, while Cobb's record of 96 will stand for 154 games. The Tigers played two ties the year Cobb set the mark. Wills had 96 through 154 games.

Frick made his ruling in connection with Roger Maris' quest of Babe Ruth's home run record. Ruth had 60 in a 154-game schedule, while Maris got 61 in 162 games for the Yankees.

Wills' base stealing wasn't enough for the Dodgers, however, who ran into a 15-hit Cardinal attack and saw their National League lead trimmed to three games when San Francisco routed Houston, 10-3. The Dodgers and Giants each have six games left, all at home. Any combination of four Los Angeles victories and Giant defeats will secure the flag for the Dodgers.

Cincinnati beat Philadelphia, 4-2, in 10 innings; New York edged Chicago, 2-1, and Milwaukee crushed Pittsburgh, 10-3, in the others.

Stan Musial and Bill White led the Cardinal assault on Dodger starter-lesser Don Drysdale (25-8) and four successors, including Sandy Koufax. Musial and White each drove in three runs with a double and single.

San Francisco closed up a bit, using a seven-run sixth inning to break open a tight game at Houston. Matty Alou's two-run double, his fourth hit of the game, and a three-run homer by Willie McCovey, his 19th, were the big blows. Billy O'Dell scattered seven hits in winning his 19th.

Vada Pinson's 23rd homer, a two-run job with one out in the 10th, provided Cincinnati with its victory over Philadelphia. Hank Aaron drove in four runs with his 42nd and 43rd homers, while Eddie Mathews contributed his 28th homer, two triples and a single in Milwaukee's easy triumph over Pittsburgh.

Frank Thomas drove in both New York runs with his 33rd homer and a single in the Mets' last home game against Chicago.

Yankees Clinch Tie For 27th AL Pennant

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The proud New York Yankees, who hate to be accused of backing in-which is just what they are doing—have clinched at least a tie for the American League pennant and can wrap it all up Tuesday night by beating the last-place Washington Senators.

The Yankees all but nailed down their 27th championship in 42 years, 12th in 14 and second in two years under manager Ralph Houk, by defeating the Chicago White Sox, 5-1, in 10 innings Sunday.

Minnesota vanquished Baltimore, 9-2, but all the second-place Twins accomplished was to avoid mathematical elimination. Trailing by 4½ games, the best they can do is force a post-season playoff provided they win their remaining four games while the Yankees lose all five they have left.

Los Angeles' third-place Angels were mathematically eliminated from the race, dropping an 11-5 decision to Cleveland for their eighth loss in their last 10 games. Detroit defeated Kansas City, 3-1. Rain forced postponement of the Red Sox-Senators game in Washington.

Wynn Fails

The Yankees ruined Early Wynn's bid to become the American League's first 300-game winner since Lefty Grove two decades ago. Wynn, 42, battled the Yankees through 10 innings before suffering his 14th loss in 21 decisions.

Right-hander Bill Stafford took a 1-0 lead into the ninth when the White Sox tied the score on successive doubles by Joe Cunningham and Floyd Robinson. The Yankees, however, raked Wynn for four runs—all after two out, in the 10th. Hector Lopez broke the tie with a single and Elsie Howard led the victory with a two-run homer, his 21st.

The Twins scored eight runs in the last two innings to overcome a 2-1 Baltimore lead. Harmon Killebrew hit a three-run homer in the eighth to snap a 2-2 tie.

Walter Bond drove in five runs with a home run and two doubles to pace the Indians' 18-hit attack against six Angel pitchers. Jim

New Paltz Plays Tie With Millbrook

Millbrook and New Paltz played to their second straight deadlock, 7-7, Saturday at the Huguenot gridiron. The visitors scored in the opening period and Coach Bill Russell's boys came back with the tying touchdown in the third stanza.

Fullback Don Molella went over from the nine on an end sweep to get the Dutchess County club on the board. He then booted the extra point.

The Huguenots drove for a score in the third quarter with speedy halfback Clayton Whitted scampering for the final 19 yards. Tony Donagura then plunged for the PAT.

Neither side threatened for the rest of the game with the action being centered around midfield.

Poughkeepsie Gets Win, 19-0

Halfback Henry Brown, a transfer from Beacon High School, scored a pair of touchdowns in leading Poughkeepsie to a 19-0 opening day triumph Saturday at Wappingers Falls.

Brown scooted over from the five in the second period and the extra point was made. Late in the same period, quarterback Roland Butts passed to end Ron Montalto for the second touchdown.

Brown scampered 30 yards for the final tally in the fourth period.

Poughkeepsie will host Middletown Saturday in a DUSO struggle.

The line score:
Poughkeepsie . 0 13 0 6—19
Wappingers ... 0 0 0 0—0

Perry recorded his 12th victory. Detroit southpaw Hank Aguirre pitched a six-hitter against the Athletics and lowered his league leading earned run average to 2.24.

Natale, Plunket, Kennedy Tally For KHS Eleven

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

After scoring touchdowns in each of the first three quarters, Kingston High School's gridiron team survived a blistering passing attack in the final period and nipped Suffern, 19-14, in a thriller Saturday at the Rockland County gridiron.

Halfback Bob Kennedy intercepted a pass on his own 30 in the final seconds of play to thwart a third straight scoring bid by the home side and preserve the victory for the Maroon in the opening test for both clubs.

Kennedy also scored what proved to be the winning touchdown with a 37-yard slant early in the third period. In the first half, quarterback Mike Hart threw scoring passes of 18 yards to end Paul Natale and 15 yards to end Jim Plunket.

Suffern, after being shoved from one end of the field to the other for more than three periods, tallied twice in the final stages and was close to a climactic triumph before Kennedy came to the rescue with his timely interception.

Kingston took the opening kickoff and marched 75 yards in 20 plays with Hart hitting Natale for the final 18. Featured in the drive, which consumed more than nine minutes, were some nifty runs by halfbacks Kennedy and Tom Auringer and by fullback Guy Bush.

The drive featured five first downs. An apparent touchdown pass of 13 yards from Hart to Kennedy was nullified when the locals were penalized for being offside. On the next play, Hart spotted Natale all alone in the end zone and his pitch was perfect. The attempted kick by Paul Gruner was blocked.

The Mounties came roaring back. Halfback Jim Vandunk took the kickoff on the 15 and brought it back to the 44. A pair of first downs brought the pigskin to the KHS 22 before the defensive line dug in and finally took over on downs on the 25.

After moving all the way to the Suffern 26, another possible score was averted when tackle Jim McRobbie pounced on a fumble. Highlight of this drive was a pass from Hart to Kennedy for 23 yards.

A Scoring Drive

Suffern couldn't move and was forced to punt. This time, the visitors started from the 40 and moved 60 yards in 11 attempts. Kennedy got away for 19 on one scamper and Auringer moved 16 more on a reverse.

With a first down situation from the 15 and with the clock showing only 55 seconds to halftime, Hart tossed to Plunket. Big Jim caught it on the 10, got away from a defender and pranced across. The extra point attempt never got off the ground as the snap from center went astray.

It took the locals only one play from scrimmage to score what proved to be the clinching score in the third quarter. After Bush recovered a Suffern fumble on the home side 37, Kennedy took a handoff, cut to the right and then the hinge-hipped halfback dashed all the way to paydirt. Hart went up the middle for the point and it seemed as if a rout was in the making.

This wasn't so. Late in the third stanza, the Mounties started moving upfield from the nine. They went the 91 yards in 11 plays with quarterback Ned Preble passing for 27 yards to end Carmen Powell on a key third down play to set up the score. Captain Dick Lyon was the chief ground gainer in the drive, picking up 27 yards on a double reverse and then slanting over from the three. Howard Peirano then plunged through the center of the tiring KHS forward for the PAT.

Dith 10:23 remaining on the scoreboard clock, there was still time. Lyon pounced on a fumble on his own 46 moments after the initial Suffern touchdown and the home side was off again.

Another Drive

Preble completed four passes in six attempts during this drive. He threw for nine yards to Jens Bang, for seven yards to Lyon, to Bang for another 10 yards and then finally to Lyon in the end zone. This play covered 28 yards. When Peirano again made the PAT, the home crowd became alive.

The locals put the onside kick in play on the 37 with a little more than three minutes left and then tried to run out the clock. However, three chances failed to gain the necessary yardage and Natale was forced to punt.

Suffern started from the 35 with 1:24 left. After guard Jack Lewis broke through to nail Preble for a five yard loss, Kennedy swiped a pass on the next play to put the nail into the coffin. The winners ran three plays from scrimmage and time ran out.

GRIDIRON JOTTINGS—Lewis and Natale were simply superb on defense for Kingston while the entire backfield has to share the honors on offense. . . . The Suffern gridiron was in splendid shape with grass covering the entire playing surface. . . . Both sides looked to be at mid-season form during most of the game and though the tackling was hard, play was clean. . . . Kingston will oppose Albany High Friday night at Dietz Stadium in the home opener.

Niagara Driver Stock Champion

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — Bill Rafter of Niagara Falls carried away the first prize of $1,000 from the NASCAR Sportsman Stock-car championship race Sunday night at the State Fairgrounds.

The race, scheduled for 100 miles, only went 86 laps on the one-mile track. It was terminated when darkness fell.

Ed Ortiz of Ransomville finished second and Dutch Hoag of Penn Yan came in third.

Two crashes interrupted the event. Bill Wimbles of Lisbon suffered back and head injuries when his car struck another vehicle and overturned several times on the last lap. He was reported to be in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital here.

On the 62nd lap, a car driven by Ken Keahl of Lockport smashed into a stalled, empty car owned by Bob Bruno of Morrisville. Both cars burst into flame and were destroyed. No injuries resulted from the crash.

A late-model and hobby-car race was scheduled to open the program but it was cancelled because of numerous delays. Cliff Kotary of Rome was declared the winner on the basis of qualifying times.

Liston 3-2 Favorite To Defeat Patterson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, in the happy role of underdog, makes his richest title defense Tuesday night against Sonny Liston, the strapping, kick-outdealing challenger from Philadelphia.

The long awaited battle of the sixties will be fought in Chicago's Comiskey Park before 30,000 to 35,000 fans who will play about $70,000 at prices ranging from $10 to $100, but the main revenue for this $5 million production will come from closed circuit television to some 270 outlets in the United States and Canada, domestic (ABC) and foreign radio broadcasts and the movies. Fight time is 9:30 p. m. (EST).

Of this record sum, Patterson will collect in the neighborhood of $1.7 million and Liston about $400,000.

Patterson has been made the 3-2 underdog. If the odds hold until fight time, it will mark the third time in 10 title fights that the fast-moving, rapid - punching New Yorker has been rated in such a lowly position.

For Patterson it is a good omen. His two greatest triumphs were scored in the role of underdog.

Underdog Against Moore

Archie Moore was a 6-5 favorite over 21-year-old Patterson when the two fought in Chicago for the title vacated by Rocky Marciano. Patterson knocked out Moore in the fifth round Nov. 30, 1956 to become the youngest heavyweight champion ever.

Sweden's Ingemar Johansson, who was the 10-round fight, was the faded onetime great, loser to the Moyer brothers, Denny and Phil in his last two fights, Robinson in an 8-5 underdog to the rugged, aggressive 26-year-old Downes for the 10-round fight.

In Dortmund, Germany, Saturday night, Doug Jones, the second-ranking light heavyweight contender from New York, will take on Erich Schoepner, undefeated German and European 15-pound champion, in a 10-rounder.

The home television (ABC-TV 9 p. m., EST) fight of the week in the United States Saturday night will feature welterweights Jorge Fernandez of Argentina and Charley Scott of Philadelphia at Las Vegas, Nev. Fernandez, a 27-year-old slugger with 57 knockouts in 81 fights, risks a possible title fight with welterweight champion Emile Griffith.

Fizzle!

That was the sound two minutes later of the Browns' threatened quick getaway in the National Football League's Eastern Conference race after Mitchell's touchdown run on a pass from quarterback Norman Snead helped the now-amazing Redskins ring up a 17-16 victory over a team rated at least a two-touchdown favorite.

Ho-ho!

That was Mitchell having the last laugh on his old boss, Paul Brown, who deemed him expendable by trading him to the Skins for top draft choice Ernie Davis.

Redskins in Front

The Redskins who tied Dallas a week ago, lead the Browns, New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Steelers, all 1-1, by a half game today. The Giants, losers a week ago to the Browns, evened their record with a 29-13 victory over Philadelphia, now 0-2. St. Louis fell before the Green Bay Packers 17-0, while the Steelers edged Dallas 30-28 as Bobby Layne set a pair of NFL career passing records.

The Packers, Detroit Lions, Chicago Bears and Baltimore Colts are all 2-0 in the Western Conference. The Lions continued their rampage behind new quarterback Milt Plum, whipping the San Francisco 49ers 45-24, the Bears belted the Los Angeles Rams 27-23 and the Colts defeated the Minnesota Vikings 34-7.

In the American Football League, champion Houston whopped San Diego's Chargers 42-17 and Dallas won over Oakland 26-16 in Sunday games while the New York Titans defeated Buffalo 17-6 Saturday night.

Indians Suffer 13-0 Defeat in Opening Test

Pawling shocked Onteora with a 92-yard touchdown play just before halftime and then went on to beat the Boiceville Indians, 13-0, in the opener for both schools Saturday at the winner's field.

Quarterback John Paugh went through the Onteora line at the eight on a quarterback sneak. He was trapped at midfield but lateraled to Bill Chilcutt, who had been trailing the play. Chilcutt went the rest of the way through the surprised Onteora secondary to pry the lid. Paugh then passed to Steve Smith for the extra point.

The sudden score came after the home side had halted a drive by the Onteora second unit. The Indians moved from their 20 all the way to eight before the Pawling line dug in. Then came the sudden explosion.

The home side clinched matters in the third period when a short kickoff was recovered. It took only two plays to score with fullback Glenn Pulver bulging over from the 19. The extra point attempt was smeared.

The Indians will oppose Rondout Valley in a UCAI attraction on Saturday at Dietz Stadium.

Saugerties Captures 16th Straight, Beats Red Hook, 33-6

Saugerties Score Early and Coast To Opening Win

Displaying awesome power along the turf, Saugerties High easily won its opener at Red Hook on Saturday, 33-6. It was the 16th straight football victory for the defending DCSL champions.

The Sawyers had their five touchdowns distributed equally among as many players. Reserve quarterback Paul Buytkins, fullback Frank Fusick and halfback Richie Giannotti scored in the first half while end Al Kane and Mike Brady tallied fourth quarter touchdowns.

Saugerties took the opening kickoff and moved 60 yards to a score. The backfield hammered at the Red Hook line and finally, Buytkins scampered the last 18 yards.

Fusick climaxed a 40 yard drive in the second period when he bulled his way into the end zone from the one. The march started when the home side was forced to punt from deep in its own territory. Later in the same stanza, Giannotti, who promises to be a great one, went 38 yards on a neat run and then Richie moved in for the PAT.

Hookers Tally

Red Hook tallied its lone touchdown in the second quarter when reserve quarterback Randy Dillman passed for 13 yards to end Don Gersch.

Both sides blew some opportunities in the second period. However, early in the fourth quarter, Giannotti almost went all the way on a punt return, being tackled on the RH 40. From there, the Sawyers hit paydirt with Buytkins tossing 15 yards to Kane for the score and Fusick plunging for the point.

The Hookers started an aerial assault after the fourth SHS touchdown and Brady plucked a pass out of the air and sailed 40 yards for the final score of the afternoon.

Coach Seither was elated over the play of Buytkins and Giannotti.

Saugerties will meet Arlington in an important DCSL tilt Friday night at Riverview Field in Poughkeepsie.

Tocco Tallies Touchdown, PAT In 4th Period

Fran Tocco, a reserve fullback, scored a tying touchdown in the closing minutes of play and then plunged for the winning point as Rondout Valley nipped Dover Plains, 7-6, Saturday at the Stone Ridge field.

The triumph climaxed a good comeback by Coach Chick Meehan's Ganders. They fell behind in the second period when the visitors recovered a fumble on the one. Prior to that, Rondout had stopped Dover on the 10 after losing the piskin on a bad pass from center.

Quarterback Tom Dolan tallied the touchdown for Dover and as the game progressed, the score looked bigger and bigger. However, the plucky home side went 60 yards in the closing drive. Tocco climaxed it with a six yard slant and his plunge for the PAT was decisive.

Bob Barnum and Don Parete were defensive standouts for the Ganders, who will oppose Ontonaga in a UCL attraction Saturday at Dietz Stadium.

Roosevelt Stops Highland, 13-7

Quarterback George Platter completed a 99-yard pass play to end Dan Barton with just 15 seconds left to give Roosevelt Central an upset 13-7 win over Highland in a DCSL struggle Saturday at Riverview Field in Poughkeepsie.

The win climaxed an uphill battle for the Presidents, who fell behind early in the first period on a 30 yard dash by Steve Sorce and an extra point.

Roosevelt knotted the count in the third period when Dave Malory did the running to the HHS 20 and then Platter passed to big Pete Brenner for the score. Ron Creighton bulled his way for the tying point.

With 15 seconds to go, the Highlanders rushed the quarterback, hoping for a safety. Platter then rolled out, spotted Barton on the 20 and it was all over.

The line score:
Highland 7 0 0 0—7
Roosevelt 0 0 7 6—13

Ventriglia Boots 3

Sport Club Routs Utica In Soccer Match, 8-1

The Kingston Sport Club booters acted the role of league champions Sunday, with an 8 to 1 route of Utica Sport Club at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

It was the third straight victory for the local powerhouse which seems bent on retaining its newly-won laurels.

It was no contest after a 1-1 tie at the minute mark. Eugene Ventriglia scored for Kingston after 7 minutes of play and Utica gained the equalizer at the 10-minute mark. After that it was all Kingston. Ventriglia was the individual scoring star with three goals.

Goals by Alex Dirks and team captain George Vizvary put Kingston ahead, 3-1, at halftime.

Auto Agency Buys Thomson Laundry On Clinton Ave.

The former Thomson Laundry premises at 243 Clinton Avenue has been sold under contract by Arthur H. Wicks to Kingston Buick. No date has been set for closing title. Wicks, retired state senator, was represented by S. James Matthews. Conrad J. Gross, president and treasurer of Kingston Buick Co., Inc., is represented by Joseph Forman.

Thomson Laundry was established in 1880 and continued to operate until recently when the Clinton Avenue site was closed and business transferred to the main plant of Kingston Laundry, Inc., 79-87 Broadway.
For a number of years the Thomson Laundry was operated by Wicks, who sold the business several years ago to Andrew Helgesen. The business was later sold to Kingston Laundry and continued to be operated until early this summer when the plant was closed and the business consolidated with the plant of Kingston Laundry on lower Broadway.

The premises connect with the Kingston Buick Co., Inc., garage and showroom property which fronts on Main Street. Future plans by Kingston Buick were not immediately available.

State Engineers Weekend Session Held in Kingston

The autumn meeting of New York State Professional Engineers, held Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Kingston, had as its guest speaker for the luncheon held at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Friday, Major General William Everett Potter.

General Potter is the executive vice president of the New York World's Fair 1964-65 Corporation. He presented a most interesting film indicating the fantasy and scope of the 1964-65 World's Fair project and discussed the many interesting facts from the human and engineering point of view which accompany a project of this magnitude.

Mayor John J. Schwenk welcomed the Society to Kingston. The State Society of Professional Engineers is representative of the 30 New York State Chapters which comprise the Society.

At the dinner meeting Friday night, the guest speaker was the well-known local historian, Harry Rigby Jr., whose subject was "In the Beginning." Rigby outlined the many engineering inventions and scientific discoveries which were developed right here in the Hudson Valley and their significance in the overall growth of our country.

Rigby also pointed out the responsibility of a higher educated group such as the professional engineers to further and improve educational opportunities for the youth of our nation.

The members and their wives were entertained before the dinner at a cocktail party with the Ulster County Chapter as hosts. Following the dinner those present were entertained by songs offered by the local Barber Shop Quartette.

Surprised in Act: Burglar Escapes

A would-be burglar, who was surprised in the act of burglarizing the Flying Saucer Drive-In at Parker Avenue and North Clinton Street, Poughkeepsie, was being sought today by authorities after he escaped capture.

Detective Jack Benton, Poughkeepsie, was patrolling the area early this morning, when he spied a man in the restaurant. He parked the police car and as he neared the Flying Saucer, the intruder dashed from a door and disappeared in the darkness.

Benton fired four shots at the fleeing man, and after a chase he notified police headquarters and the area was surrounded. Town of Poughkeepsie police, deputy sheriffs and state police from area sub-stations went to the scene to assist but no trace of the intruder was found.

Benton said the man fled in the direction of College Hill.

Trustees Determining Blanding's Successor

Vassar College trustees are in the process of determining a successor for Miss Sarah Gibson Blanding, who will retire in 1964 as president of the college.

The college by-laws provide that the trustees elect the president upon nomination by a special joint committee of 11 members, consisting of five trustees elected by the college's board, five members of the faculty elected by the faculty, and the chairman of the board.

It is understood that the trustees plan to elect their members in October, and it is hoped that a candidate can be placed in nomination by October, 1963.

Po'keepsie Man, 92, Surrenders Driver License

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP) —John Van Benschoten, 92 believed to be the oldest active automobile dealer in the state and one of the oldest in the nation, had a message of congratulations today from the State Motor Vehicles commissioner.

Commissioner William S. Hults congratulated the Poughkeepsie man for using "good judgment" in giving up his right to drive.

Benschoten, who has been driving cars since they first appeared in appreciable numbers on American highways, received a punch card application from the Motor Vehicle Bureau last week to renew his driver's license.

He returned it incompletely with a note saying: "I've been driving long enough. I'll give the younger people a change."
